Approve Mayor's Budget Of $4,120,630 As GOP Aldermen Give Support

Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan's budget totaling $4,120,630.08 for 1967 general government expenses was approved Friday night at a special meeting of the Common Council by an 8 to 5 vote — with five Republicans voting in favor of the budget.

A tax rate of $70.53 per $1,000 of assessed valuation was approved by an 8 to 5 vote. The amount to be raised by taxes was fixed at $2,073,747 with the balance made up in anticipated revenue.

The special meeting had been requested by five Republican members of the Council. A motion to relieve the Council's Finance Committee of its duties, thus enabling the budget to be brought on the floor for a vote was passed 7-6.

Two items in the mayor's budget previously had been debated and hotly opposed by some council members. They were the $18,500 item for the City Laboratory, and an appropriation to cover hospital insurance for city emloyes. The latter item some councilmen argued appeared not sufficient.

The vote last night on Mayor Garraghan's budget:

For its adoption—Republicans: George Margolis, First Ward; Robert C. Schantz, Second Ward; John Naccarato, Third Ward; Raymond Armater, Eleventh Ward; John Machione, Twelfth Ward; Democrats: Clifford Sinsabaugh, Fifth Ward; Peter Mancuso, Eighth Ward; and William G. Davis, Liberal, Thirteenth Ward.

Opposed — Alderman Emillio A. Primo, Jr., (D) Fourth Ward; Joseph Epstein (D) Sixth Ward; Edward Norton (D) Seventh Ward; T. Robert Gallo (D) Ninth Ward; James F. Howard (D) Tenth Ward.

Rules Meeting Was Legal

There had been a question raised as to whether the special meeting called for last night was legal. That was cleared when Alderman-at-Large Francis T. Koenig received a ruling from Corporation Counsel Vernon A. Murphy that the session was legal providing the business transacted was confined to the Mayor's budget.

Alderman Sinsabaugh thanked all citizens in his ward who helped him make his decision to vote for the Mayor's Budget.

Alderman Epstein in voting No, explained that he wanted "more items in the budget such as insurance programs for city employes and the tax levy reduced".

Figures Are Correct

Alderman Mancuso said, "as late as 2 p. m. today I spoke to the City Treasurer about the figures in the budget and was reassured by the treasurer that all figures in the mayor's budget were correct." He said he had conversed with many employes in the city and learned there

Reveal $10 Million Area Phone Outlay

New York Telephone today announced plans for a $36 million expansion, replacement and improvement program in its Eastern Area during 1967.

In the mid-Hudson region alone, the company will spend more than $10 million for the second successive year to expand and improve telephone service, according to Colin W. Getz, general manager.

Reported Jan. 5

This year will mark the beginning of a program to expand many toll-free calling areas in this region by late 1969, Getz said.

Under this program, about 75,000 telephones in the following exchanges will be added to the Kingston toll-free calling area in late 1969: Poughkeepsie, Clinton Corners, Highland, Hyde Park, Millbrook, Pleasant Valley, Clintondale, Milton, Kerhonkson and New Paltz as reported in The Freeman Jan. 5.

Eventually under the program all telephones served by New York Telephone within 20 miles of the Kingston exchange would be included in the Kingston toll-free calling area.

Noting that the company spent $2 billion in the last five years to improve service throughout the state, Getz said the construction program planned for 1967 calls for expenditures of about $400 million to keep up with the continually increasing demands for communications services in the state.

"As an illustration of growth, the company's 10 millionth phone recently was installed," he said. "It took 73 years to install the first 5 million telephones but only 16 years for the next 5 million."

Over 52,000 in Area

Approximately 1,000 new phones were added in 1966 in the area served by the Kingston business office, boosting to over 52,000 the number of phones serving the 32,000 customers in this area.

The number of local and long distance calls continued to rise, too. Kingston customers averaged 134,000 calls a day compared to 121,000 in 1964. That's an increase of better than 10 per cent in two years.

The company's payroll during the year totaled over $2.2 million for the 327 telephone employes who serve the Kingston area.

New York Telephone, the state's largest taxpayer, paid $167 million in state and local taxes in 1966. In this area alone, the company paid $331,127 in local taxes, Getz said.

This was in addition to the federal taxes paid by the company and the federal excise taxes on service collected directly from telephone customers.

One of the 1966 highlights for telephone people in this area was the inauguration of a "Good Neighbor" program to give recognition for outstanding community service.

Another highlight was the relocation of the telephone business office to a larger office, with more space for public accommodation, in one of Kingston's new ILL-FATED CREW—Apollo 1 crew recently posed for photographers on Pad 34 with the service gantry that houses the Saturn 1 Rocket and was to propel them into orbit late in February. Virgil I. (Gus) Grissom points toward outer space. With him are Edward H. White, center, and Roger B. Chaffee. (AP Wirephoto).

List Grissom, White, Chaffee Blast Victims

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—Investigators poked today through the charred hulk of the Apollo 1 moonship, seeking the cause of a searing flash fire that turned it into a death trap for three of the nation's spacemen.

A team led by Maj. Gen. Samuel Phillips, Apollo program director, began a preliminary search for clues to the disaster that stalled perhaps for months the U. S. drive for a landing on the moon.

A formal board of inquiry was to convene later, headed by Dr. Floyd Thompson, director of NASA's Langley Research Center.

Lay in Infirmary

One and one-half miles from Pad 34, site of Friday night's first great spacecraft tragedy, the bodies of astronauts Virgil I. Grissom, Edward H. White II and Roger B. Chaffee lay in an infirmary.

They were practicing for a two-week space mission, the first of the Apollo flights which will culminate in the lunar landing, when the hot blaze snuffed out their lives in an instant.

Grimly, space officials said they would push on with the program, but the holocaust which capped a long series of troubles with the Apollo spacecraft will call for a soul-searching look before other lives are risked.

And Rep. Charles A. Mosher of Ohio, second-ranking Republican member of the House Science and Astronautics Committee, said it was "inevitable" that safety procedures will be review in Washington.

Had Problems

Apollo, first scheduled to blast off before the end of last year, has been plagued by malfunctions.

During the final checkout and testing of Apollo 1, many changes and modifications were made.

Not a word came from the astronauts when the fire flash ripped into the explosive pure oxygen atmosphere of the spacecraft. Death, said space officials, was instantaneous.

Two victims of the holocaust on Pad 34 were space veterans, the other a rookie.

The 40-year-old Grissom flew in Mercury and Gemini programs, helping blaze the first American trails in space. White, 36, was the first U.S. astronaut to leave his ship and become a human satellite. Chaffee, 31, was training for his launch.

Some day, every spaceman knew in his heart, it was bound to happen. It was too much to hope that the perilous route to the moon could be traveled without loss of life.

But when it came, they thought, it would be in the far reaches of space, not this way.

Going through a full-scale simulation of the launch that was to carry them aloft Feb. 21 for a two-week ride, Grissom, White and Chaffee were trapped in the spacecraft when it was swept by the flash fire.

No Word Came

No word came over the monitors, said Paul Haney, voice of the astronauts. Apparently, all three died instantly from heat or asphyxiation.

The emergency escape system was closed to them, because the entire craft was locked in a protective gantry.

Fire hot enough to ignite metal seared and blackened the spaceship. Bodies of the astronauts were badly charred.

"Three valiant young men have given their lives in the nation's service," said a shocked and saddened President Johnson. "We mourn this great loss and our hearts go out to their families."

Twenty-seven launch pad crewmen were overcome by smoke in futile efforts to get through to the astronauts. Two were hospitalized.

Not until 1:55 a.m., more than seven hours after the fire broke out, were the bodies removed from the smouldering space ship. They were taken to a nearby dispensary.

Had No Chance

"They didn't have a chance," said a NASA spokesman. "It was instantaneous."

Until this sudden disaster, so far unexplained, Americans had come through many daring space rides without a mishap. Three other astronauts had died, but in airplane crashes.

A board of investigation was to be named today to seek the cause of the mishap.

Johnson and officials of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said the moon program would push forward with renewed dedication and purpose — as the three men would have wanted it.

In Risky Business

"If we die," Grissom once said, "we want people to accept it. We are in a risky business, and we hope that if anything happens to us it will not delay the program. The conquest of space is worth the risk of life."

The astronauts were in their space suits, in a pure oxygen environment, when the blaze flared up. During the countdown, minor troubles had been reported with the communications and environmental control systems, but it was not known whether the fire stemmed from this.

Gordon Harris, chief of public affairs for NASA's Kennedy Space Center said the men probably died without any knowledge that there was serious trouble aboard.

Tanks Empty

The spacecraft and rocket were not fueled and explosive devices aboard the spacecraft had been inactivated.

Navy Capt. Walter M. Schirra Jr., now steps into Grissom's role as command pilot for the first Apollo mission. Other members of the backup crew will be Air Force Majors Walter Cunningham and Donn F. Eisele, both space rookies.

Maoists Vow to Seize Rebels In Control of Sinkiang Area

TOKYO (AP) — Peking radio reported today that Mao Tse-tung's followers in rebellious Sinkiang Province, where 100 persons were reported killed in recent clashes, have vowed to seize the government from appointees of President Liu Shao-chi.

The Mao-controlled radio also said Red Chinese army troops in full battle dress paraded through the streets of six cities Friday to demonstrate their loyalty to Mao.

The displays of military might were staged in Taiyuan, capital of Shansi Province, recently captured by Maoists, as well as Shanghai, Peking, Fukien, Paoting and Lanchow in the northwest.

Peking wall posters, Japanese correspondents reported, said seven of the eight Sinkiang army divisions — about 140,000 of the 160,000 men — were loyal to Gen. Wang En-mao, the pro-Liu commander of the Sinkiang Military District.

The situation in the province, scene of 1960 border incidents with the Soviet Union and site of China's five atomic explosions, was said to be tense.

Peking radio said Sinkiang pro-Mao "rebel" headquarters and members of the government and administration declared they would begin an all-out struggle to seize the leadership of the vast but thinly populated northwest region.

Sinkiang's population of 5.6 million is 75 per cent Uigur, racially close to the Turks, and only 10 per cent Chinese.

The troops in Peking marched to factories, the suburbs and

Schedule Array Of Stars to Aid CP Drive on TV

Today and tomorrow Ulster County area TV viewers will be treated to a 19-hour marathon of "live" talent via either WTEN, Channel 10, Albany, or Kingston Cablevision's Channel 3.

The event is the Cerebral Palsy Telethon — one means of support for United Cerebral Palsy of Ulster County, a Community Chest agency which provides treatment for handicapped children from Ulster and Greene Counties. Since many of the children are from outside the chest area, the telethon is one means of providing these additional funds needed. The show starts at 11 p. m.

One big local boost for the campaign is the continued donation of telephone facilities by the Ulster County Savings Bank, 280 Wall Street, and the Catskill Savings and Loan Association. Viewers may call either location with their pledges and volunteers will man the phones at these banks for the full 19-hour period.

Emceeing the show this year will be famed MGM recording star Johnny Tillotson, with Ilene Woods, voice of Cinderella and a recognized face to TV viewers, will serve as "anchor-girl." She has appeared on several local TV shows in recent weeks to champion the telethon.

Others taking part include

Rain Fire Bombs On Cong Hideout Near Cambodia

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — Giant U.S. B52 bombers rained fire bombs on War Zone C today in an attempt to burn out the longtime jungle sanctuary of the Viet Cong near the Cambodian frontier.

It was the second incendiary raid this month by the high-flying Stratoforts.

A U.S. military spokesman, who announced the raid, said the results were not yet known.

Has Suggestion for Ellenville Educators

Release Confidential Statement Of Dr. Crewson on School Plight

Leaders of the Ellenville Citizens' Committee for Public Education, decided recently to release a letter from Dr. Walter Crewson, New York State associate commissioner of education, in which he evaluates the Ellenville Board of Education.

The letter, dated August 10, 1966, had been withheld from the public until recently, when it was decided to release its contents containing recommendations from Dr. Crewson.

Harold Harris and William Eckert, co-chairman of the Ellenville Citizens' Committee, said Dr. Crewson released a copy of the letter. This was in response to a written request from Harris dated Jan. 16.

The Citizen's Committee voted to release the contents of the letter with the realization that Dr. Crewson's original intent was to offer the board constructive advice on a confidential basis. After reviewing the letter, the committee decided to make it public because, in the group's opinion, the educational climate in the community has continued to deteriorate for many of the specific reasons mentioned in the letter.

At its January 10 meeting, the School Board declined to make the letter public on the grounds that if Dr. Crewson wanted to release it, he was free to do so. At a subsequent meeting on January 17, Dr. Arnold Wolff presented a motion that the letter be made public. This motion was seconded, but tabled until an opinion could be obtained from the board attorney who was out of town.

It had been earlier pointed out to the Board that Section 2116 of the Education Law provides that "The records, books, and papers belonging or appertaining to the office of any officer of a school district are hereby declared to be the property of such district and shall be open for inspection by any qualified voter of the district at all reasonable hours, and any such voter may make copies thereof."

In reviewing the chronology of events, the Citizens' Committee concluded that, since the Board had refused to release the letter on January 10 and then on January 17 tabled Dr. Wolff's apparently sincere motion, the entire procedure was one of delay. This was especially obvious, according to the committee, since a telephone call to Dr. Crewson would have resolved the matter immediately.

The Citizen's Committee, in reviewing the situation, was aware that two members of the current board (Thompson and Henderson) were not members at the time of Dr. Crewson's evaluation, but were in a position to act on his recommendations, though apparently did not, after they were appointed by the board.

Careful consideration of all the facts in light of the Citizens' Committee objectives of improving public education in Ellenville led to the group's decision to make the letter public immediately.

The complete text of Dr. Crewson's letter follows, verbatim.

National Goal of 1970 Landing in Question

Investigation of Tragedy to Tell If Moon Program Will Be Delayed

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—America's moon program has suffered heavily, not only by the personal tragedy of losing three astronauts, but also by stalling perhaps for months the effort to land men on the moon by 1970.

However, officials say it is too early to tell whether the national goal of trying a moon trip by the end of the decade is in jeopardy after Fridays' grim catastrophe on a Cape Kennedy, Fla., launch pad.

"If they are able to quickly determine what happened, the program will go on," said Rep. Olin Teague, D-Tex., a high ranking member of the House Aeronautics Committee. "If not, it will have to wait until we find out."

Air Force Lt. Col Virgil I. Grissom Jr., Lt. Col Edward H. White II and Navy Lt. Comdr. Roger B. Chaffee died during a simulated flight of their Apollo spaceship when a flash fire engulfed the vehicle.

Several major factors are involved in determining how long the National Aeronautics and Space Administration now must wait before launching its first manned Apollo flight, the mission of up to two weeks Grissom, White and Chaffee were to begin Feb. 21.

First, an investigating board must determine exactly what caused the flash fire, whether it was something only peculiar to this one spaceship, or whether it was a problem that might force a redesign of the Apollo vehicle's systems.

Then, there is the matter of equipment — whether the spaceship involved in the fire must be completely discarded and a new one used in its place.

Apparently the vehicle was charred inside and out. Paul Haney, voice of the astronauts, said it was "heavily damaged."

NASA has other spaceships. The delays would result, though, from weeks of testing required before a vehicle is taken to a launch pad.

New astronauts must be trained. However, the backup crewmen who now will take over the prime slots have had the benefit of months of training. They are Navy Capt. Walter M. Schirra Jr., Air Force Maj. Donn F. Eisele and civilian Walter Cunningham.

Schirra, Eisele and Cunningham originally were slated to fly the second Apollo mission, but a shakeup in scheduling caused by other problems forced their flight to be canceled. They then became backups to the first crew.

NASA could possibly play "musical chairs," so to speak, by moving the spacecraft tabbed for the second mission to the first. However, it is of a different design, more nearly like the one that some day will fly men to the moon. This probably would bring on a reshuffling of the flight plan and additional training to acquaint the crew with the new design.

The Schirra crew's original spaceship is on the shelf and possibly available. It was forced aside when a tank in the service module, or propulsion and equipment section, ruptured last fall.

Whatever the case on which spaceship is used, the major

Base in Deep Mourning, Notify Wives, 6 Children of Spacemen

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The scientists and spacefarers of the United States' moon team mourned in private today for the three Apollo astronauts killed in a flash fire aboard their rocket ship at Cape Kennedy.

Air Force Lt. Cols. Virgil I. Grissom and Edward H. White II and Navy Lt. Cmdr. Roger B. Chaffee were to have returned to the space center for a conference today on the flight plan for their Apollo I mission, scheduled for Feb. 21.

Each had a wife and two children waiting at home for a weekend together.

By 6:45 p.m. Friday, however, each family had received a call from an astronaut and a physician who told them the news.

As a fat moon rode over the space community, sheriff's deputies, Manned Spacecraft Center security guards and police arrived at the three homes to turn away curiosity seekers and to discourage newsmen from questioning and photographing callers.

Astronaut Walter M. Schirra Jr., who heard the news as he was flying to Houston from the cape, arrived home and went next door to comfort Betty Grissom and her sons Scott, 16, and Mark, 13.

Lt. Col. Michael Collins was with Martha Chaffee widow of the space rookie, and her children, Stephen, 5, and Cheryl 8.

Jan Armstrong wife of astronaut Neil A. Armstrong stayed with next-door neighbor Patricia White and her children, Edward, 13, and Bonnie, 10.

Through the night each family received dozens of callers who came and went in solemn silence. At the space center's news office secretaries went as they prepared releases on the tragdy.

Apollo I would have been Chaffee's first space flight, but the Grissom and White families had been through the ordeal of waiting for their husbands and fathers to return from space.

Whatever their private fears, the astronaut families always have maintained stiff upper lips for the public. After Grissom returned in Gemini 3, a mission

The POWER of FAITH

By WOODI ISHMAEL

The many fine credits in Louis DiValentin's biography attest to his standing as an artist. And the many cathedrals, churches and religious institutions that have his paintings and sculpture, among them the National Cathedral and St. Matthews in Washington, D. C., attest to his own deeper spiritual impulses. He feels that painting on religious themes is a statement of faith in the midst of contemporary chaos and confusion.

Born in Venice, home of many of the masters, DiValentin has followed the great renaissance tradition of painting and sculpturing. As a boy during World War I in war torn Italy, he knew hunger and privation and learned the meaning of faith. He expresses it in his art today. Whenever he exhibits he always includes some of his religious works. His prize winning, "Neither Yet Have You Faith," sketched in the picture above, has inspired thousands.

"The instability of our mechanical and scientific age, the inability of men to live in peace, the lack of faith in anything, necessitate a restating of basic truths," says DiValentin.

THE LENGTH OF HOURS

In the technical sense all hours are exactly the same length. For every one is made up of sixty minutes, no more and no less—just as every minute is fashioned out of exactly sixty seconds. In the strictly technical sense what the clock metes out to us is precisely the same for every last mortal on our planet.

But life does not submit or surrender to the sovereignty of technicalities. We are not robots going through motions; we are men. And what an hour means to us, and holds for us, makes a mighty difference with its length.

Recall that old proverb which states that a watched pot never boils. Actually, of course, the pot will come to a boil just as quickly, minute-wise, whether it is watched or not. The eye has absolutely no relevance to the time-span required to acquire sufficient temperature to bring the liquid to the boiling point. It neither will retard nor speed-up the process one whit. But the time it takes to bring the pot to a boil seems so much longer when one stands over it and waits.

It is the "seems", life-wise, that makes the length of hours different. How much longer the hours seem when we are waiting for the doctor than they do when we are doing something which we thoroughly enjoy.

Hours of pain pass slowly. They trudge with a snail-like pace that is an unspeakable test of endurance. How often when we are ill we dread to see the night come on On illness, it seems, always is worse at night. And when others in the household are sleep, and we cannot manager to lose consciousness in slumber, we toss and tumble—and wish for the morning. Nights for the healthy seem like "mere muddings"; but nights for the sick and the discouraged seem like an eternity.

One great problem with grief is that the hours lengthen out into an almost unbearable burden of unrelieved loneliness. If only we could get away from it for a few hours of respite. But at the first the loss registers like a great millstone about the neck of our incentive for further living; and the days drag on with terrible, heart-rending consistency.

A small girl had caught the significance of the fact that, life-wise, all moments (and years) are not the same length. Asked by an adult friend how old she was, she replied: "Well, if you goes by the birfdays I'se had, I'se almost five; but if you goes by the fun I'se had, I'm almost a hundred."

"Time is:
Too slow for those who wait,
Too swift for those who fear,
Too long for those who grieve,
Too short for those who rejoice,
But for those who love life—
Time is eternity."

Church Council Hears Idea for Summer Dramas

A "working session" of the Kingston Area Council of Churches was held Thursday night at St. James Methodist Church. According to a spokesman, little official action was taken due to the number of members called out of town through other commitments.

Among the suggestions aired at the meeting was one by Richard Barnhart that "dramatic presentations" be made a part of a united program this summer. The idea, it was explained, would be to stage theatrical programs, based "possibly" on religious themes and involving members of each church.

Joint Service Of Protestants, Catholics Noted

A joint service of prayer and praise will be held at The Fair Street Reformed Church this Sunday evening, with the people of St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church, and the people of The Fair Street Church participating at 7:30 o'clock.

The liturgy for the evening, developed by Father Nicholas Mosunic of St. Mary's and Rev. Edwin Coon of Fair Street will include the official Unity Octave Prayer of The Roman Catholic Church, the Prayer of Confession and Litany of Petitions from the National Liturgical Conference which was held in Houston, Texas in August of 1966.

The evening Scripture lessons will be read by Glenn Knapp, Chairman of Fair Street's Christian Education Commission, and Frank Bailey, director of the Religious Education Program at St. Mary's.

Father Mosunic will deliver the Meditation. The service will be concluded with a custom from The Church of Christ in South India called The Passing of the Peace, a tradition in which personal greetings are given from person to person throughout the congregation, symbolizing the Christian's unity in Christ.

The hymns chosen for the evening are: All Hail The Power of Jesus' Name, O God, Our Help In Ages Past, and Love Divine, All Loves Excelling. Others participating in the service will be organist, Larry Lowder, and Fair Street Church's Minister of Music, Percy W. Gazlay II. After the service, an informal social hour will be held in the Church's Parish Room.

Meetings between these two churches were begun in October of 1964 when area priests conducted a three week study program at The Fair Street institute of Christian Living. Friendships developed which were continued, when, in the fall of 1965 members of The Adult Group of the Institute, visited St. Mary's Church. In June of this past year people from St. Mary's returned the visit to the Fair Street Church while some also attended a four-week study series, led by Father Thaddeus MacVicar from Glenclyffe this past October. The service Sunday evening is open to the public.

Thring's Thing: The Housewife Of the Future

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP) — Prof. Thring is developing the darndest things — such as a robot that will revolutionize housekeeping by doing every odious chore from ironing clothes to cleaning the oven.

"Within 10 years time," says the distinguished engineer, "we could have a robot that will completely eliminate all routine operations around the house and remove the drudgery from human life."

Clears Tables

Specifically, Thring's thing would:

Lay and clear dining room tables.

Make beds and change sheets.

Dust, sweep and clear up.

Wash clothes and iron them.

Press suits and dresses.

Scrub floors, baths, sinks and stoves.

Prepare food — but not cook it.

Thring's thing would be taught to remember the correct place for furniture. And after performing the household tasks, it would fold itself up, put itself away and recharge its own batteries.

In Who's Who

Prof. Meredith Wooldridge Thring is professor of mechanical engineering at London University's Queen Mary College, and his accomplishments and distinctions fill half a column in Who's Who.

"There is more drudgery being done by educated women in the home than anywhere else," he says. "My aim is to relieve that drudgery and enable women — and their husbands who help them — to lead civilized lives.

"There is nothing in this problem that could not be developed and solved with scientific principles we already know.

Takes Money

"But all of this requires money. It requires the same sort of money that was spent in developing a successful motor car, but nothing like the money which you Americans seem to be spending in the space race.

"I think the motor car industry, if it's wise and looks to the future, should be looking for a second string to its bow. The robot is the obvious one because, like a car, every family will want a robot. The car industry could make and supply them."

For how much?

"For about the same price as a small family car," he replied.

Prof. Thring, 51, said man has three brains — emotional, intellectual or logical and physical.

Predict Logical Brain

"The robot of the future will have a very good logical brain," he said, "but it can never have the emotional brain. It will never do original or creative work, artistic work, inventive work, or anything like that."

"The great advantage of robots is that we can build logical decisions into them, based on the best value judgments we can make.

"Robots are our machines. We make them do what we want them to do, not what they want to do."

Asked what will happen to people of lower intelligence when scientists produce the super robots, Thring's answer was:

Some Not Creative

"When the robot has eliminated the routine work, there will be, of course, some people who can't do creative work for themselves.

"Now, what are they going to do? I say the answer is—they will be trained to diagnose and repair the faults of a particular machine. They will look after the upkeep, the mechanical upkeep of the robots."

Is Thring satisfied that when the age of the robot arrives men and women will be able to adjust to a world without drudgery?

"This is a very important question," he replied.

Must Adapt Education

"The answer is—only if we adapt our education to take account of the change.

"In other words, we'll have to start training people right from the start, from a very early age, to have a creative leisure activity which they choose themselves—one they don't do for money—but do because they enjoy it."

SOME OF THRING'S THINGS—Meredith Woodridge Thring, professor of mechanical engineering at London's Queen Mary College, inspects some of his robot models. "Within 10 years," says Prof. Thring, "we could have a robot that will completely eliminate all routine operations around the house and elminate the drudgery from human life." He also has a mechanical rat and a robot fireman. (AP Wirephoto)

HINTS FROM Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Please repeat how to make a nylon pompon.

Ertha

Better still, Ertha, I'll let you share a letter from one of our darling readers who finally put it in simplified form.

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I buy a half-yard of your nylon net which comes 72 inches wide. I cut three strips across it about six inches wide and stack them one on top of the other . . thread a big needle with nylon yarn and with one-inch basting stitches, go down the middle of the full 72 inches of stacked net.

Then I draw this up . . . as one ordinarily does for a double ruffle . . . make it as tight as I can and tie the yarn together. Be sure it's tight.

Wrap the yarn around its so-called waistline again, and tie tightly on the other side and cut the remaining yarn off at the knot.

Now . . . take each layer of net, one at a time and yank it so it separates. It must stand apart.

When you have done this, you have the most beautiful big pompon chore girl (we call them "choir" girls) to scrub pots and pans and dishes that you can imagine.

These pompons are wonderful for scrubbing walls, cabinets, bathroom fixtures and linoleum.

One of these "choir girls" left in the bath tub serves to scrub heels and elbows and to get out that tub ring.

They also make nice brushes for men's hats and closely woven fabrics. I make several at a time, matching them to my kitchen and bathroom colors.

Lila Lee

Dear Gals:

This is also a wonderful gadget for scrubbing potatoes when boiling them or baking them in their jackets!

Nylon net may be bought at your dime or department store for about 40 cents a yard. It is the type of nylon net from which—when I was young, we made evening dresses.

Be sure and buy the net with the smallest holes. It's usually the same price and a far better buy.

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Did you know that you could spray children's anklets with spray-on starch and they would look trim and neat? The starch will form a shield of cleanliness to lock out the dirt, and thus save scrubbing time.

Virginia White

Dear Heloise:

When I make an omelette, I don't try to flip it over in the skillet. When it's cooked on the bottom and still runny on top, I pop it under my heated broiler! Watch this carefully as the top will cook in no time at all.

All one has to do is fold it over and each omelette is perfect.

If I fill it with onions, or any other filling which takes more cooking time than the omelette itself does, I pre-cook the filling and then sprinkle it on top of the omelette before placing under the broiler.

Rolly Wray

Dear Heloise:

I dyed three old white towels a dark brown and covered my torn hassock. I added a draw string on the bottom so it could be removed for easy laundering. It's practical and decorative.

J. S.

Dear Heloise:

To avoid having to get out my chopping bowl so often; I chop the amount of onion, parsley, nuts, celery and green peppers that I think I'll use during the week.

I store them in separate jars, or clear plastic containers, in the refrigerator.

It sure is convenient and time saving to just spoon out the amount you want at each mealtime.

Dear Heloise:

If you smoke, I am sure you have had the misfortune of letting the ash from a cigarette fall on a chair, cloth, etc., instead of in the ash tray.

If this happens, wet the tip of your finger (saliva works beautifully) and hold it just above the ash. This works like a magnet and you will wind up with the ash intact on your fingertip.

The ash may then be easily disposed of. This is far less embarrassing than having a grey streak on someone's upholstered furniture or clean tablecloth.

M. S.

Dear Heloise:

If you have an electric toothbrush—reserve a brush that is no longer usable for teeth.

It's wonderful for scrubbing finger nails.

Run it across a bar of soap a few times, then plug it in. It cleans around and under nails just perfectly.

I always do this before I polish my nails.

Irene Miels

Dear Heloise:

I use the plastic, 3-inch medicine bottles to carry my loose face powder in. It is lightweight and takes up no space to speak of.

Powder does not fly in the air when opening the top, and there is no waste.

HIGHWAY SAFETY SUNDAY

Highway Safety Sunday will be observed throughout the nation on February 26. In preparation for this very important event, motorists should start immediately to observe all highway safety rules thereby saving hundreds of lives in the interim. Some of these lives could be in our own area.

Common violations, which cause highway fatalities, are speeding, reckless driving, following too closely (tailgating), failure to yield right-of-way, drunken and imprudent driving.

These, of course, are only some of the violations. Others include crossing double solid line, changing lanes unsafely, failure to keep right, visibility impaired, failure to dim highlights, inadequate brakes, etc.

Unless there is stricter observance of regulations and a deeper sense of responsibility in the operation and maintenance of motor vehicles, the toll will increase. Now is the time for motorists to start doing something about it.

THEY MAKE 'EM TOUGHER

So you haven't been feeling so hot? A little twitch here, a twinge there?

And you think of Daniel Boone and his hardy physique, and decide they just don't make people like they used to?

You're right. They don't. They make 'em better. And they maintain and service 'em better. If they didn't, a lot of us wouldn't be around to complain that they aren't making people like they used to.

Have you been reading what we have to breathe into our lungs and bodies when we go outdoors? Enough soot, smog, dust and stuff to choke a horse!

And have you heard what we inhale when we're in our own home, sweet home? Grease fumes from the cooking, chlorine fumes from the water, chemical fumes from cleaners and solvents, and—give up?

And all this is not to mention such items as water pollution, people congestion, insecticides, viruses and germs by the millions. And business pressures and the frantic pace of modern living.

Sure, Daniel Boone was rugged and fearless, and he never backed away from even the meanest bear. But did he ever have to cross a busy street in today's traffic? Or drive the freeway during rush hour?

He had clean, pure air to breathe and crystal-clear water to drink and swim in. Nature pampered him with purity and coddled him with cleanliness.

Modern man, on the contrary, must somehow manage to survive in the face of pollution, pressures and politics. To do it, his anatomy must be practically indestructible.

You were lucky, Daniel Boone, to live when you did. Frankly—and taking nothing away from you—you might not care to buck the vicissitudes of modern living.

Remember—this is the age of space-pace civilization. Nobody ever had it so rough.

CONCENTRATING ON SMOG

The recent annual meeting of the Society of Automotive Engineers in Detroit brought heartening evidence that a great deal of work is now being focused on the problem of curbing automotive fumes. Industry, government and college engineering departments are carrying on a broad variety of research and development in this area.

Not only the automobile industry but also the big oil companies are engaged in such work, though their approaches are different. Numerous papers presented by auto manufacturers' engineers zeroed in on ways of reducing automotive smog by altering the chemical content of gasoline. And oil company engineers were just as busy telling the car makers how smog might be reduced by better design.

For years, attempts to improve performance have been the main focal point in automotive engine design. Now there are indications that more and more attention is being devoted to design of engines to curb smog emissions. This is an important shift of emphasis, and one amply justified by rising concern with the smog problem in cities. America's millions of cars pour out a vast cloud of air pollutants. It makes excellent sense to concentrate on inhibiting this contamination at its source.

NEW YORK (NEA)

President Johnson's visit to Europe in the spring reflects a belated recognition that the United States has reached a low point in relations not only with France but also with West Germany and other NATO allies.

No doubt the President's first concern is to win the war or reach a peaceful settlement in Vietnam. But a great nation like the United States cannot afford to concentrate all its energies and resources in one corner of the world and ignore or neglect other vital areas.

This is particularly true of Europe. The United States is, after all, still the military backbone of NATO. Even to win or settle the war in Vietnam, Johnson will ultimately need the aid of the Western allies.

The President's trip to Europe will thus give him an opportunity to explain first-hand to NATO America's aspiration's and aims in Southeast Asia.

It should certainly help to allay fears that the United States will make a deal with Russia at the expense of Europe, especially West Germany, in order to reach a settlement in Vietnam.

More important, the President's journey, if carefully planned and prepared, can also be the first step toward a reconciliation between the United States and France.

Indeed, how much longer can the Johnson administration pretend that Charles de Gaulle simply does not exist—as though by ignoring him the troublesome Frenchman will disappear from Europe's political scene?

To be sure, France's president is an irritating statesman. His dislike of the United States is as pathetic as his vision of France's Napoleonic grandeur is preposterous.

Yet it is shortsighted diplomacy to continue to ignore le grand Charles' design to remake Europe into an independant "third force." Actually, it is in the interest of the United States that Europe should be less dependent on America.

De Gaulle may have his blind spots—especially where France's grandeur and the United States are concerned—but he is far more realistic in his appraisal of the tensions that exist in the Red world than the State Department's "Russian experts." He was the first to predict that, as result of the growing conflict between Russia and Red China, the Soviet leaders will be forced to seek a truce and the status quo in Europe.

De Gaulle foresaw this at a time when Foggy Bottom's overcautious diplomats still regarded the Moscow-Peking conflict as a ruse to lull the West into complacency and a false security.

What De Gaulle is currently trying to achieve with his East-West diplomacy is to convince the Russians and their East European allies that the threat of Germany is no longer serious enough to justify a continuation of the cold war.

Will he succeed? Much will depend on the West Germans themselves. Hitler and Nazism are still a living memory, especially in East Europe. Thus, it is not enough for De Gaulle to say that Germany is no longer a threat.

The Germans themselves will have to show good faith by renouncing all proximity to the nuclear trigger and abandoning all claims to the lands east of the Oder-Neisse.

During his recent visit to France, West Germany's new chancellor, Kurt Kiesinger, agreed to consult with De Gaulle on moves to ease East-West tension. But he persisted in Bonn's refusal to make a public statement recognizing the Oder-Neisse line as Germany's permanent eastern frontier.

If President Johnson can induce Bonn to discard this negative policy then progress toward peace in Europe — even a united Germany — will become possible.

Trimming Denture May Relieve Jaw Numbness

By WILLIAM LAWRENCE, D.D.S.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Dear Dr. Lawrence: "My question is: What makes my chin numb? I've just started wearing new dentures and something seems to be wrong with the lower one—Mrs. F. B.

Answer—Numbness or anesthesia of chin and lips of denture wearers is not common. We've seen few such cases in recent memory. In all of them, one side only was involved and the lower denture was at fault.

The nerve that supplies sensation to teeth, jaw and lips lies in a canal inside the jaw bone. When natural teeth are present this nerve gives off a branch to each tooth. On cheekside of jaw, on both sides, in premolar areas, there is an opening in the jaw bone, under the gums. A branch of the main nerve emerges from this opening and supplies sensation to chin and lower lip.

Since our bodies are bilaterally symmetrical, this opening appears on both sides of the jaw, nerves coming together and intertwining at midline—like intertwining fingers. Therefore, if the nerve on one side becomes involved, part of the opposite side of lip and chin present similar symptoms.

If dentures fit too tightly in area where the nerve emerges from bone, pressure on the nerve may cause irritation and numbness or some degree of anesthesia in chin and lip. This can easily be relieved by trimming that section of denture that lies over the emerging nerve.

This treatment usually gives relief in a matter of hours. Further relief and comfort may be obtained by application of hot wet packs to affected areas. (Wet towel over hot-water bag.)

There are other causes of numbness of jaws, some of them serious. A tumor anywhere along the patch of the main nerve; injury; pressure of impacted wisdom tooth; "novocain" injection; temporary or permanent numbness following extraction of tooth, if nerve is injured; all are causes that must be considered before correct diagnosis can be made and proper treatment given.

Washington News

TOKYO—(NEA) — There are some things a nation does that leave an indelible imprint on history.

In my trip through Japan and Southeast Asia it has been brought to my attention time and again that two particular things the United States has done in the past two decades have done much to convince the free people of Japan and Asia of American sincerity:

1. The U.S. action to stop the British-French- Palestine invasion of Nasser's Egypt over the Suez Canal.

2. Our occupation of Japan.

In Egypt, we stopped our frends. We protected Nasser, who certainly was no friend of the United States.

It was an action that made no sense in terms of power politics. It made sense only in building a world in which moving into another country by force would not be tolerated. It meant that such rules applied to our friends as well as our foes.

Said a very prominent Japanese to this reporter: "That action (over Egypt) will be to your everlasting glory."

This one act convinced many doubting Japanese and other Asians that U.S. intervention in Vietnam is good, even when these men don't agree with what they think we are doing there.

It has stopped many men short who would otherwise be against us.

The occupation of Japan was another incident which impressed many Japanese and Southeast Asians.

The thing that surprised the Far Eastern peoples was that a victor country would give so much, make so many sacrifices and do so many helpful things for a defeated "enemy."

"Then, after the occupation was over, your people went home, asking no idemnity, no reparations, nothing at all," said one Japanese, still amazed 15 years after the occupation ended.

Many Japanese told this reporter that the attitude of the Americans in that occpation was not the attitude of a victor over an enemy but the attitude of one friend toward another.

It didn't matter that the American occupiers made mistakes or that the Japanese disagreed with some things that were done.

The important thing was the spirit — the attitude — of the American occupiers.

In Asia there is a tendency to judge men by their hearts rather than by their deeds. To Asians, therefore, the American occupation revealed the American heart.

So, however many mistakes we may make these days (in their minds), there will be a great body of Asian confidence in American policies. They will believe these policies come from well-intentioned hearts.

Do You Remember by Sophie Miller

From time to time I am asked about the Overlook Mountain House. A little item written by Frederick Edward Westbrook, Counsellor at Law an member of the New York City Historical Society in 1883 who mentions the Overlook Mountain Company of Kingston. The company had completed the Mountain House on one of the highest peaks in the Catskills, said to accommodate 300 guests, a first-class hotel, to be run by Mr. Lasher. It was then said, the interesting location was 3,800 feet in height, and the picturesque landscape was magnificent.

Mr. Westbrook telling about the population of the town of Kingston, including Rondout, in 1840 was 5,800; in 1870 it increased to 21,000. The population of Ulster County in 1840 was 39,000 and in 1870, it was 84,000. The Delaware and Hudson Canal, the Rondout and Oswego Railroad, the Wallkill Valley Railroad, from New York, terminating at Kingston, and a railroad to connect with Rondout and Oswego to Boston, via the Connecticut Western, was in progress in 1870's.

When we studied Washington Irving's literature in school, the description of our area was brought before us, to some extent. Mr. Westbrook wrote in 1883 that Washington Irving was an admirer of the magnificent scenery especially where a rapid mountain stream emptied into the Hudson at Saugerties, at the time he surveyed the Catskill Mountains, in company with the ex-President Van Buren and General Smith, of Kingston. Irving exclaimed, "This is the most impressive and beautiful mountain scenery that I have ever witnessed." Westbrook wrote about Kingston in 1871 "the intelligence, social habits, and refinements of its citizens render this place a delightful place to retire after city life vexations.

F. E. Westbrook wrote in 1883—"Wonderful results have been accomplished since 1871. Twelve years ago Kingston was rejoicing over the successful building of the Overlook Mountain House and also a few small boarding places in the mountains then accessible via Kingston. In 1883 Kingston was delighted to having the Grand Hotel, Overlook, Kaaterskill Hotel, Laurel House, Kaateskill Falls, Tremper House, Guigou House, Hunter House and several other large hotels and Kingston being the gateway by all-railroad to nearly 1,000 hotels and boarding places in all parts of the Catskills. Carriage roads had been built by Messrs. Kiersted, connecting Overlook north wtih Harding's and Beache's mountain houses, and in fact connecting all leading hotels, so guests could visit one hotel or another during their stay. Since June 25th, 1883 when Hon. Thomas Cornell commenced the Kaaterskill Railroad with a celebration connecting Hunter with Harding's or Kaaterskill Hotel, New Yorkers came by thousands during the summer via Kingston. Kaaterskill House could accommodate 1,000 guests alone, besides all the smaller mountain houses."

The merchants of the uptown business section of Kingston, seeing the importance of this mountain trade, including Hunter and vicinity, and Delaware County, contributed largely to the extension of Fair Street to the Ulster and Delaware Railroad and the building of a depot there. Kingston was organized and and incorporated as a city in 1872, and governed by a mayor and 18 aldermen, according to Wesbrook's report of 1883.

Sidewalk Condition

Editor, The Freeman:

Now that the snow is nearly all gone, it is very noticeable how much dirt, papers, garbage, etc. are strewn on sidewalks and streets, including a variety of cans and bottles. Within one block between Pearl and Main Streets, particularly on Wall Street, if each occupant swept his part of the sidewalk and picked up the papers, etc., the appearance of the street would improve. If all residents on streets in the same condition would get the broom out, Kingston would begin to look inviting. Personally, I'd hate to show an out-of-towner around.

The Wallkill River

Editor, The Freeman

The current interest in preserving Perrine's Bridge points up the importance of the Wallkill River as an undeveloped and unrecognized recreational resource of Ulster County.

Having canoed several times down the Wallkill from Huguenot Street in New Paltz to the Sturgeon Pool power dam in Rifton, I am impresed with the extent and beauty of the miles of river between these points and its excellence for bathing, boating and fishing when existing pollution is eliminated, as it certainly will be.

Much of the land on the east bank of the river from New Paltz north to the Route 32 bridge is unused. North of the Thruway bridge and Perrine's Bridge there is also a large area of unused wild and wooded land on the west bank of the river and the pond at Rifton. If acquired for a state or county park this unused land could be developed for picnicking, camping or other outdoor-recreational activities along the river and pond at relatively low cost and without removing property of much present or potential future value from the tax rolls.

Consequently it seems that there is now an unusual opportunity to create a large rural park with plenty of land, woods, and natural water right in the middle of Ulster County by acquiring land and water frontage along the Wallkill River from New Paltz north to Rifton.

Sincerely yours,
JOHN R. GARDNER

Possible Hoffa Blast: Step-by-Step Approach

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — Teamsters President James R. Hoffa has had his trials and troubles but he has just cooked up something now which might cause an explosion.

The best way to follow the story is step by step.

In 1962 Hoffa won a mistrial in federal court in Tennessee on a charge of illegally accepting more than $1 million from a trucking firm. "This wasn't the end of it. Then he was charged with tampering with the jury which freed him.

Tried and Convicted

In 1964 he was tried and convicted on this charge in federal court in Chattanooga and given an 8-year sentence. He appealed this to the Supreme Court which on Dec. 12, 1966 upheld his conviction.

But just about then New York's Democratic Sen. Robert F. Kennedy — who had been attorney general at the time of Hoffa's two trials and conviction he got into a hassle with J. Edgar Hoover, director of the FBI.

They were in an argument over who had authorized — while Kennedy was attorney general — the use of wiretapping and electronic eavesdropping, or "bugging." Hoover said Kennedy did. Kennedy said this was untrue.

On Dec. 15 — three days after the Supreme Court had turned down Hoffa and in the midst of the Kennedy-Hoover dispute — William Loeb, publisher of the Union-Leader newspaper in Manchester, N.H., offered a $100,000 reward.

This was for proof of the use of wiretapping or eavesdropping by the federal government before or during Hoffa's court troubles in Tennessee.

Records Show Loan

Court records at Hillsboro County registry of deeds in Nashua, N.H., show Hoffa's union pension fund loaned Loeb's newspaper $2 million in June, 1965, with a mortgage on the plant and equipment as security.

Loeb, offering the reward, said his newspaper "believes that in a large part the prosecution of Mr. Hoffa was motivated by personal spite by the then Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy, who now, in the opinion of this newspaper, stands revealed through the testimony of J. Edgar Hoover as one of the greatest wiretappers of all time."

Now, in an affidavit revealed Thursday, Loeb says that on Dec. 20, five days after denouncing Kennedy and offering the reward, he had a conversation with an assistant to Hoover, Cartha D. DeLoach.

Sure of Evidence

Loeb says DeLoach suggested to him that he tell Hoffa's lawyers that their best bet would be to "ask the Department of Justice (which Kennedy left in 1964) to conduct an investigation of wiretapping in connection with the various Hoffa trials."

DeLoach told him, Loeb says, he felt sure an investigation would turn up "extensive evidence" of wiretapping in connection with Hoffa's trials.

Further, Loeb says, DeLoach told him he would deny he had ever talked to Loeb about the matter if Loeb attempted to publish "this information."

There seems no doubt Loeb talked it over with Hoffa's lawyers because Thursday his affidavit, swearing he had told the truth about DeLoach, appeared in a brief Hoffa's lawyers filed with the Supreme Court, asking it to reconsider its decision against him last December.

Hoffa told the court he and two of his attorneys were subjected to eavesdropping and wire tapping during his 1964 jury-tampering trial. And he identified the wiretapper as Benjamin David Nichols, saying the latter had operated under the supervision of Walter Sheridan, a special consultant at the time to then attorney general, Kennedy.

Not About Hoffa

Nichols gave a similar account of the alleged tapping in an affidavit of his own in the Hoffa brief. Justice Department and FBI spokesmen declined comment, saying they did so because the case was before the court. Kennedy, in Europe, was unavailable for comment.

This month, for the 10th time, the Justice Department admitted it had engaged in electronic eavesdropping, although it hasn't admitted that about Hoffa.

Business Week in Review

By DAVE SMITH
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — President Johnson sounded a firm note of economic optimism for 1967 in his annual economic report to Congress this week. Most of the nation's largest banks extended a cooperating gesture by cutting prime interest rates on business loans.

But the automobile industry hummed a different tune. In the face of lagging new car sales, the automakers ordered more production cuts and layoffs.

Fears Recession

President Johnson told Congress on Thursday we must plan now to avoid a recession that could follow "the welcome day of peace" in Vietnam. More immediately, he predicted a moderate growth in the economy through 1967—though at a slower rate than in 1966—as well as smaller price hikes, continued near-full employment and loosening credit.

But the nation's banks differed on how much they would go toward easier credit by cutting prime rates.

Chase Manhattan, the nation's second largest, reduced its prime rate to 5½ from 6 per cent Thursday. One smaller bank went along.

Friday, Chase's cross-town rival, First National City Bank of New York, sliced its rate to 5¾ per cent. Other large banks followed, including the giant Bank of America in San Francisco, the largest in the country.

Late Friday, Chase said it had no present plans to change its 5½ per cent rate. Bankers speculated how long it could hold out.

The prime rate is the interest charged borrowers of the highest credit rating, usually large corporations. Other rates are scaled upward from it.

For 1967 Johnson predicted a $47-billion rise in the gross national product—GNP—to a record $787 billion, a 6.5 per cent increase compared to 8.5 per cent last year. When probable price rises are taken into account, the increase in the GNP—sum of all goods and services produced—shrinks to 4 per cent.

He said his $135 billion spending budget, aided at midyear by a proposed 6 per cent surcharge on business and individual income taxes, will provide the proper fiscal mix to keep the economy on a course of "sustainable expansion" — fast enough not to stall, slow enough not to overheat.

Moving Down

He also said "extremely high" interest rates on mortgages, which put the housing industry into a depression in 1966, "are moving down from their peaks." "Our housing industry," the President said, should be "moving smartly forward by the end of 1967 and ready for one of its best years in 1968."

Accompanying the President's 23-page report was the 285-page report of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, which called for continued observance in 1967 of its anti-inflationary wage-price guidelines. The council rapped some industries for not cutting prices where the guidelines indicated cuts would be appropriate and said, "Automobile prices are doubtless such a case."

The four largest auto builders, facing an already overstocked new car market, made further large cuts in production schedules already trimmed since the sales slowdown began last year.

Note Layoffs

General Motors, the biggest of the Big Four, announced indefinite layoffs for 1,900 Chevrolet workers after already laying off 2,800 other GM workers.

Chrysler said that of its seven plants, the Detroit Lynch Road, Los Angeles and St. Louis, Mo., plants would shut down for one week each in February, while the one at Hamtramck, Mich., would shut down for two weeks. Chrysler's February production —111,100 last year—would thus be trimmed to about 94,800 cars, after having been trimmed once already.

Ford Motor Co. effected its production cutbacks by means of eliminating some overtime and by putting some plants on four-day work weeks at staggered intervals.

American Motors, whose plants reopened on Monday after a two-week shutdown, meanwhile was turning out 1,100 cars a day—500 fewer than before the shutdown.

Many on Lots

An industry source said the moves apparently were triggered by estimates that there were 1,355,100 new cars on dealer lots on Jan. 15—55,000 more than the 1966 inventory showed. Sales in the first 20 days of 1967 were 361,389 cars, almost 19 per cent off the 1966 pace and with the heavy supply in dealer's inventories—a 58-day supply compared with a 45-day supply last year—the automakers concluded that they better gear production down to the current sales-supply ratio.

The stock market also took its first clear-cut loss of 1967 during the week. On Wednesday, a heavy trading day, the Dow Jones industrial average fell 7.13 to 840.59. Of 1,441 issues traded, 756 fell and 457 rose, the first time that more declined than advanced. Brokers said the decline was due to overdue profit taking.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Saturday, Jan. 28, the 28th day of 1967. There are 337 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1933, Adolf Hitler was made chancellor of Germany, succeeding Gen. Kurt Von Schleicher.

On this date

In 1871, during the Franco-Prussian War, Paris was surrendered to the Germans.

In 1932, Japanese armed forces attacked the Chinese garrison at Shanghai.

In 1944, warships of the British Royal Navy lent support to the battle for the Anzio beachhead in Italy.

In 1945, the U.S. 8th Air Force celebrated its third anniversary by making its 1,000th air raid on German industrial targets.

Ten years ago—President Eisenhower proposed an emergency program for the nation's schools. The four-year program called for federal expenditures of $1.3 billion for school construction, $750 million dollars for the purchase of local school construction bonds and $20 million dollars for matching state and local construction grants.

Five years ago—The picture-taking Ranger III spacecraft designed to crashland on the lunar surface missed the moon completely and went into orbit around the sun.

One year ago — President Johnson said a few fanatical Communist leaders pursuing "the old cynical strategy of rule or ruin" are responsible for the failure to achieve peace in Vietnam.

helpfulness — with no objective in mind other than to make some small contribution to a situation that appears to be highly confused, and indeed inimical to the best interests of your fine community and to the present and future welfare of 2,300 boys and girls.

You will note that the report does not direct you to do anything. It, after reading it, you prefer to have conditions continue as at present, you may surely do so.

In this spirit, then, may I present the picture in Ellenville as it appears to me, and offer some advice to you as the constituted authorities, for correcting conditions which appear as barriers to real quality education in Ellenville.

A. The Present Situation:

As indicated by the Board members, themselves, in the course of our informal discussion:

Talk to Press

1. You are not operating as a board, but as factions and even as individuals. Individual board members talk with the press about board policies — even campaign publicly against policies adopted by the board.

If the board is seeking the course of the community's lack of faith in the board, you need look no further. The community hears so many divergent voices coming from the board that the citizens know there is no unity in the board, and no unified governance over the schools.

My recommendation: In completely closed session, the board should hammer out policies for the internal operation of the board, on matters of press relations; these policies committing the board members to support all policies adopted by a majority of the board.

If any member of the board subsequently violates such policy, I believe it would be proper for the board to advise the Commissioner of Education of such violations.

In-Fighting

2.—The board is permitting individual members of the professional staff to lodge complaints (against the administration) with individual board members.

My recommendation: The board should resolve that individual members of the board will not receive such complaints. In a written policy, the board should require such complaining staff members to appear before the entire board in public session to lodge such complaints, and the board should further require the complainants to demonstrate that they have sought relief through proper administrative channels prior to their coming to the board.

There is no board unless it is in session. Individual board members are completely out of order when they seek or encourage complaints from the staff of the district principal.

Unless the board is willing and able to make and enforce this recommended policy, the board will find that no present or future chief school officer can perform his duties efficiently, and the board will be digging itself into a hole which will prevent the board from devoting its full attention to its proper business, the making of educational policy.

Must Take Action

You have educated the community to expect these inefficient practices of the board. Unless you can forthrightly take appropriate policy action, the faith of the community in the board will surely continue at its present low level.

And there does not exist anywhere an administrator who can perform his appropriate functions, in coordination with a board that is not a board at all, but nine separate individuals each trying to have his own way.

Individual board members are seeking complaints against the administration among the citizens.

Of course, the citizens will complain. I am sure we could gather a great body of complaint against the board from the same citizens.

Notes Repudiation

The board is following the wrong ball. Does a board elect a chief administrator as a result of a popularity poll?

And does the board believe that the quality of education in Ellenville relates to the popularity of the board? Surely your community has repudiated these practices by registering a vote of no confidence in the board's budget proposals. How long will it be before the board faces up to this hard fact?

4—The board, though its committee system, is taking administrative matters into its own hands. Let me say as kindly as possible that the board is not competent to administer the schools nor was the board elected for this purpose.

Such matters as the appointment of professional staff should be brought to the board as recommendations by the chief administrator.

Develop Standards

My recommendation: The board should develop standards for each class of professional and other empoyles regularly appointed by the board. These standards should be set down in written policy form.

The board should advise the chief administrator that these standards apply to all personnel recommended by the administrator. The whole process of recruitment should then be delegated to the chief administrator.

The Chief administrator should bear the full responsibility for developing the district budget. The board should receive and discuss this budget, make such alterations as the board deems necessary, adopt budget by majority vote — and by written policy commit the individual members of the Board to support the budget as adopted by the board.

B. — The Future:

Once the board has developed and adopted the recommended written policies, the board should make a public statement for release to the press and radio, indicating the board's determination to live by its policies until it (the board) sees fit to alter the policies, at which time the board, speaking with one voice, will advise the community.

Cites Attraction

What kind of citizen will be attracted to a board that does not choose to operate like a board? What caliber of teacher and administrator will be attracted to a school system governed by a board that chooses to operate like a board? And what quality of education will result?

Now as to your problem with our administrator:

It is my recommendation that the board set out at once to put its own troubled and disorganized house in order.

The department will render any service required by the board to accomplish this task.

The department will assign an able person to work with your present administrator for one year, assuming the board is willing and able to mend its ways as outlined above.

Sets July 1 Date

If, by July 1, 1967, the situation is not greatly improved in relation to community confidence in the board, and in relation to the board's confidence in its administrative officer, the department will lend its full services to the board in assisting the board to find a new administrator.

I will be most happy to confer again with the board after the board has had time to consider this report and to determine what action if any the board contemplates.

If the board is satisfied with its current operating procedures, we will have no further advice to offer to the board, except perhaps that the cause of education in Ellenville would be well served by its unanimous resignation.

Respectfully submitted,
WALTER CREWSON

tenant colonel, was one of the original seven astronauts and the first to ride a blazing rocket twice into the skies.

After his first flight, a suborbital hop in a Mercury spacecraft, Grissom wound up swimming for his life when the ship sank in the Atlantic.

With Navy Cmdr. John W. Young, he flew the first three-orbit mission in Gemini 3 and became the first man to maneuver a spacecraft in flight.

First to Walk

White, also an Air Force lieutenant colonel, was the first American to walk in space, orbiting outside the Gemini 4 spacecraft for 21 minutes.

Chaffee joined the space program in 1963 with the third group of astronauts after logging more than 1,800 hours in jet aircraft. He was a Navy lieutenant commander.

Parents of the dead astronauts were in seclusion, stricken with grief.

President Johnson sent personal messages to families of the lost spacemen.

The President and five astronauts — L. Gordon Cooper Jr., M. Scott Carpenter, Neil A. Armstrong, Richard F. Gordon and James A. Lovell — were at the White House in the hour of tragedy. They were celebrating the signing of the treaty on peaceful uses of outer space.

Must Press On

Despite the terrible loss, Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., said the United States must press on with the conquest of space.

"I don't think this indicates any dereliction on the part of those conducting our space program," he said. "Perhaps it is only the law of averages catching up with us."

Each of the three Apollo fliers was married and each had two children.

A NASA spokesman said funeral arrangements would be announced, possibly late today, after consultations with the families.

Had Problems

The Apollo I spacecraft has been beset by problems throughout its development.

At a symposium in Houston last month, Dr. Joseph Shea, Apollo program manager at the Manned Spacecraft Center, said Apollo 1's life-supporting environmental control system had logged "something over 200 individual failures" during its qualification program.

Even during the final phases of Apollo 1's checkout and testing, hundreds of changes and modifications were being made every month.

Early last year, officials said they hoped to launch the spaceship before the end of 1966. Blastoff dates were set for November and December.

A series of problems, mostly involving the environmental control system, delayed the launch until January. Several weeks later, in early December, tests in a vacuum chamber were postponed for two weeks because of another leak, forcing the launch date to be delayed until Feb. 21.

2 Injured in Mishap

A two-car collision Friday night at Washington Avenue and the Boulevard resulted in injuries to a West Point cadet and a young woman. Officers Kenneth Radel and Anthony Turck reported the vehicles were operated by Samuel L. Byers, 39, of 20 Hurley Avenue, and John Richard James, 21, a West Point cadet. James and Gael Fletcher, 19, of Lake Hill, a passenger in his car were taken to Benedictine Hospital by Doctors Ambulance. James sustained arm injuries and the young woman received injuries of the head and leg. Byers was cited by police on a charge of passing a stop sign.

Faces Dog Violation

Accused of permitting a dog to run at large in violation of the City Dog Ordinance, Samuel Levine, 34, of 410 Pearl Street, was booked today by city police. He was paroled for hearing in City Court on Feb. 11. Complainants were Janet Turck, 430 Pearl Street, Margaret Andretta, 400 Pearl Street, according to police.

was no dissention toward the budget and that all approved of it. "I thank all the people in my ward for their reassurance," he said.

Alderman Machione said he will not support any other form of taxation for the rest of this year. He was quoted as saying that he felt the Mayor's budget "looked like a piece of swiss cheese" and emphasized that while he was not completely satisfied with giving the mayor the budget, he was voting in favor of it "because the Mayor said he could work with the budget."

Supported $1.15 Reduction

Alderman Norton said after the meeting that he supported a $1.15 reduction in the tax rate rather than 42 cents because of the need to reduce taxes for the middle income and fixed income budgets of the people in Kingston. He said he wanted an insurance plan for all city employes now, not later. He was quoted, "Don't put off until tomorrow what could be done today."

Alderman Primo said he would like to have a reduction in the tax rate now, in explaining why he voted against Mayor Garraghan's budget and he urged "give it back to the taxpayers where it belongs."

Gallo Notes Opposition

Alderman Gallo, chairman of the Council's Finance Committee continued his opposition to the $18,500 item in the budget and said he opposed Garraghan's budget because that item remained "to redecorate one room." He contended that an item of $5,000 for insurance benefits for city employes "was not adequate."

Referring to the item for the $18,500, Gallo said, "I will not accept the old cry from some officials, that the money is coming from the Federal and State Governments. The money is comingfrom the same pocket — the taxpayers pocket."

"In losing the budget, "Gallo said after the meeting, "the Finance Committee of which I am chairman, is not disappointed. We live in a Democratic society, in a Democratic form of government in this country."

Says Majority Rules

Gallo said "the Alderman have seen fit to adopt the Mayor's budget by a majority vote, and the majority rules. We'll live with the budget and without any hard feelings. As chairman of the Finance Committee I certainly hope the Mayor has enough to carry out all programs fully."

Changes proposed by the Finance Committee's budget would have slashed the appropriation for the City laboratory some $67,000. The committee proposals would have reducted the tentative budget submitted by Garraghan some $29,000, and it would have fixed the tax rate at $69.80, some $1.15 under the 1966 rate.

Mayor Garraghan had contended that the budget proposed by the finance committee with a rate of $69.80 per $1,000 of assessed valuation, was "illegal" because it proposed to slash the item entered for the laboratory.

Alderman Naccarato had previously charged that delayed action on the budget could cost the taxpayers $4,000 in interest. He said he had studied the mayor's budget. He termed the budget a good one.

Mohawk, Strikers Talks Progressing

WASHINGTON (AP)—A federal mediator says there has been some progress in talks between representatives of a striking mechanics union and officials of Mohawk Airlines.

C. Robert Roadley declined, however, to give the details of Friday's bargaining session.

He said both parties were reviewing the situation separately and were to meet again today.

The strike began Dec. 9 over the method of financing a pension plan. When that was resolved, the company announced that only 375 of the 500 striking mechanics would be permitted to return to work.

The union, the International Association of Machinists and aerospace Workers, insists that all mechanics be rehired.

In Utica, N. Y., Friday, the company reported what it said was its first on-the-job accident since the strike began. An assistant vice president of maintenance lost the tips of three fingers on his left hand while installing a compressor in a jet engine.

The airlines is based in Utica, where maintenance shops for the regional carrier are being manned by supervisory personnel.

Charged With Fighting

Accused of participating in a fight in front of the Franklin Apartments on Broadway early today, three men appeared later in City Court. Joseph Ellsworth, 23, of 212 Hasbrouck Avenue, charged with third degree assault, received an adjournment until Monday. Clarence Jackson Jr., 27, of 18 Ann Street, and Robert B. MacDonald, 23, of 9 Janet Street, both pleaded guilty to disorderly conduct. Their cases were adjourned until Feb. 4. Ellsworth and Jackson were held in lieu of bail. MacDonald was released in $100 bail. The arrests were made by Officers Leon Fitzgerald and Frank Kennelly.

Ky Watches War Games, Real One Only Mile Away

SOUTH VIETNAM (AP) — U. S. fighter - bombers pounded a suspected Viet Cong concentration today while less than a mile away Vietnamese government leaders gathered to watch war games.

Premier Nguyen Cao Ky and other officials of the ruling directory were ferried from the capital by helicopter to watch the two-hour joint operations demonstration in rolling scrub land 11 miles northeast of Saigon.

Bombs Hit Cong

A U.S. Air Force spokesman said three F100 Supersabres were called in to bomb and rocket a suspected guerrilla concentration before the mock battle started. The jets struck an area between Thu Duc and Saigon.

The war games were in honor of visiting South Korean air force chief Lt. Gen. Chang Chi Rvang. They simulated the capture of a Viet Cong stronghold and included air strikes, a helicopter assault, tank reinforcement, paratroop drop and firefight.

Parachutists carrying streamers with the Korean and Vietnamese flags jumped in front of the reviewing stand.

The only U.S. elements involved in the demonstration were jet planes in the air strike and a spotter plane. Brig. Gen. Donovan F. Smith, chief adviser to the Vietnamese air force, was the ranking American present.

Ministers Return

On the political scene, informed Vietnamese sources said three officials who are in Hong Kong with ousted deputy premier and defense minister Nguyen Huu Co are expected back in Saigon Sunday.

Co's dismissal was announced Friday and his defense portfolio was given to Cao Van Vien, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff. Co, once powerful in the military junta, was told he was sacked while on an official visit to Formosa.

Wins Appeal

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore. (AP) — It cost Ralph Watson about $6,000, but he finally won his appeal on a conviction which would not have cost him a cent.

Watson, 50, was arrested in 1963 for selling a copy of "Lust Pad" to Dale Crabtree, district attorney at the time. He was convicted in 1964 of disseminating obscene material and received a $100 suspended fine.

Watson took the conviction to the State Supreme Court. He estimates it cost him $6,000 in legal fees. The American Civil Liberties Union paid the balance of the cost.

A jury acquitted Watson Thursday night after a four-day retrial which was ordered by the State Supreme Court. During the trial the entire text of "Lust Pad" was read to the jurors.

The company also held an open house event at the Fleischmanns central office to keep residents abreast of the technological changes in the communications industry. An open house is scheduled in Kingston early this year.

Among new services introduced by the company in 1966 were the:

Hospital Interphone, to provide better patient-nurse communications. The patient's set includes a specially designed handset with various intercommunicating features.

Alarm Reporting Telephone, which is primarily for remote, unattended locations. It automatically will call a pre-selected number and deliver a taped trouble report when activiated by an alarm.

Portable Data-Phone data sets which can be used to send electrocardiograms between remote locations over reglar telephone lines. With these sets, a doctor may take an electrocardiogram in a patient's home and have it analyzed immediately by a specialist miles away.

In 1967, Getz said, the company plans to offer additional new features. Among them will be:

Tone Ringer, a device similar to door chimes and primarily for use by handicapped people and persons with impaired hearing. The ringing of a phone will be more easily identifiable with this device.

Deluxe panel phone, for customers with more than one line. This unit can be installed to fit flush with a wall.

Apartment house service, enabling a customer to open the front door by pressing a button on his telephone.

The dates for introduction of these new features will be announced later, Getz said.

Reporter Dies, Did Legs Diamond Writeup in 1933

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Ray O'Connor, a former city editor of the Albany Times-Union and police reporter when Jack (Legs) Diamond was murdered here in 1933, died Friday in his room at a hotel. He was 63.

O'Connor was found in bed by his brother, Tracey, his only survivor.

O'Connor was among a vanishing breed of newspaperman, who prided himself on knowing the location of every fire alarm box, all-night diners and service stations in this city.

In his spare time, O'Connor used to read the Albany city directory because he said it helped refresh his mind of names and addresses.

He also was on a first-name basis with hundreds of city and town policemen and State Police.

O'Connor began his newspaper career with the now-defunct Albany Knickerbocker Press in the 1920s. After working as a taxi-driver for several years, he worked as a police reporter for the Times-Union, a morning newspaper.

When Jack (Legs) Diamond and his bootlegging mob were making headlines in the Catskill Mountain area during Prohibition, O'Connor was assigned to the story.

When the gangster was found murdered in his bed at a rooming house here, O'Connor was quick to gather the facts and write the story.

He was appointed city editor of the Times-Union in the 1940s, but continued to write stories that came from police headquarters. He retired in 1961.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete.

African Motifs Are Shown in Dior Show

By LUCIE NOEL
AP Fashion Writer

PARIS (AP) — Dior took a safari to darkest Africa today, showing native embroidery, chiefs' costumes and bush jackets for spring and summer. On the way, designer Marc Bohan hiked skirts to about three inches above the knee in many of his splashy daytime dresses and suits.

Dior models had body-hugging silhouettes, sometimes belted in gold chain, and there were amulet charms everywhere.

Tailored suits were all designed with patch pockets like hunters' bush jackets, again with gold curb chains.

For afternoon and cocktail wear, there were African chiefs' headdresses. Hairdos were piled up in tight knots, sometimes many-tiered.

A large group of little tailored suits snugly cut and mostly belted in gold curb chains were designed like bush jackets.

All the hats were borrowed from the national park rangers, chin-strapped in gently rolled brimmed light straws. As the day developed into evening, tiny tiered headdresses were perched on high-tiered chignons, in the African mood.

The tailored bush jackets and safari coats were mostly in gingham plaid wools, some very bright, others in pastels. They all had hemlines clearing the knees by three inches. Certain ones had inverted front pleats, some were worn over Bermudas and several were designed on culotte lines. Jackets were all treated to three or four patch pockets.

Buttoned tabs at the low waist held the gold curb chains in place. One had a gold crocodile for a buckle. Native wooden beads, or local nuts, buttoned and decorated coats and suits. Triangular pointed nuts formed a headdress and necklace as well as buttons.

Triple gold choker necklaces recalled the Garbon jewelry, while tribal bracelets and wood were mixed with semiprecious stones. Earrings were small gold pearls. In the shoe department most models wore laced oxford style and here, too, African woods, teak, and even marquetry inlays were shown beside basketworked leather. Stockings are most white, often finely textured.

Frans Hals is considered second only to Rembrandt among the great painters of The Netherlands.

Teachers Hold One Of Workshop Series

More than 30 teachers from each district school in Ulster County, and Valley Central of Orange County, gathered at the Alpine Restaurant recently for a study of professional negotiations, second in a series of workshops begun in December. Douglas Snow, of Highland Central School, was in charge.

The workshop was divided into three parts, including a discussion of written agreements recently adopted in this state; a county-wide salary discussion with stress on recent proposals from each district school; and, after a buffet luncheon, a dramatization of a meeting between a board of education and teachers concerning adoption of a formal negotiation agreement. Emphasized were diplomacy, preparation and a dialogue "in good faith."

Among those taking part in the workshop were teachers from New Paltz, Highland, Kingston, Rondout Valley, Saugerties, Wallkill, Onteora, Ellenville and Valley Central.

Rondout Valley P-TG Presents Scholarship Fund Contribution

The Parent-Teacher Group of Rondout Valley Central High School has made a $103 contribution to the Rondout Valley Scholarship Fund. A check in this amount was presented to A. J. Anderson, Chairman of the Fund's Board of Directors, at the high school on Jan. 20. Making the presentation for the P-TG were Charles Denkensohn, president and Mrs. Carolyn Waruch, treasurer.

The money represents the $50 pledged to the Fund by P-TG, plus $53 realized from sale of refreshments by the American Education Week Open House at the high school in November.

Accepting the check, Anderson said that all contributions, large and small, are welcome. "The Directors hope that a group will not feel its contribution is too small to matter. Several small amounts put together can mean the difference between having a scholarshtip and not having one."

A word to housewives from the Mid-Hudson Heart Association: be calorie-and-cholesterol-conscious in your kitchen. Use skim milk in recipes; broil, rather than fry or suate; use poly-unsaturated cooking oil and special margarine wherever possible. Prepare soups and stews a day ahead, and refrigerate; next day, skim the congealed fat from the top before heating and serving.

The Right Thing to Do

By Elizabeth L. Post

DON'T CHANGE PLANS FOR UNEXPECTED GUESTS

Dear Mrs. Post: I think I am right on this issue, but would like it printed by you. Plans have been made between two couples to go out to spend an evening at one of their houses. One couple gets unexpected company. Shouldn't they explain to the company that they had plans made and suggest that perhaps they could set a date with them for another time? Am I right?

Martha

Dear Martha: You are right. That is exactly what they should do. I have said innumerable times, and I repeat it now, don't "drop in" on friends without giving them a call first to make sure it is convenient. If you don't do so, they have every right, in fact they are obligated, to go through with their previous plans.

Paper Plates and Sterling Silver

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it proper to use sterling silverware with paper plates and cups for sandwhiches and desserts when entertaining? Thank you for your help. —

Deanna

Dear Deanna: Paper plates and cups are proper only for informal entertaining, and then the gay patterns are most attractive. I would not use them for sit-down dinners, or for buffets, in the latter case because they tend to sag if well loaded. For outdoor barbecues, picnics, informal coffees or brunches, they are fine, and there is no reason not to use your regular silverware with them.

Bachelor Objects To "And Son"

Dear Mrs. Post: My son and I live together. He is a bachelor (age 36). We received several Christmas cards addressed to "Mrs. Richard Brown and Edward" or Mrs. Richard Brown and son." He strongly objects to this form of address. He says the cards should be addressed to:

Mrs. Richard Brown
address

Also, when I send cards to mutual friends, how should I sign the cards? — Mrs. R. Brown

Dear Mrs. Brown: A thirty-six year old man certainly should have his last name appear on the envelope, and it shows little respect to tack him on as "and son." Therefore, he's right. If the envelope is addressed to you both, his name should be written in full below yours. In signing cards, you write "Helen Brown and Edward," or if they are friends who call you both by first names, you may write simply "Helen and Edward."

Carpino in Asia

Airman Second Class Joseph J. Carpino, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael R. Carpino of Rt. 1, Kingston, is now on duty at a forward U. S. Air Force combat base in Southeast Asia. Airman Carpino, a vehicle maintenance specialist, is a member of the Pacific Air Forces. Before his arrival in Southeast Asia, he was assigned to an Air Force unit at Edwards AFB, Calif.

He attended Kingston High School.

Interest Shown In Saturday's College Program

Considerable interest has been shown in the enrichment program Ulster County Community College is going to offer for area high school juniors and seniors, Professor Harry Matzen, the coordinator, said today.

The program, called the Saturday Collegiate Program, will start February 18 and run for 10 weeks. The registration deadline is February 8.

Response Pleasing

"We're highly pleased by the response we've had to this program, "Professor Matzen said, "and we feel it will be a stimulating intellectual experience for the students."

The coordinator said there will be four semester-long seminars, each built around a different discipline. The goal is an enriched experience for the students as well as to sharpen their enthusiasm for a college experience.

The enrollment is being limited to 30 students for each seminar to encourage class discussion. To keep the intent of enrichment from being lost, no college or high school credit will be given for the seminars.

"I've visited schools throughout Ulster County to explain this enrichment program," said Prof. Matzen, "and I've found great interest wherever I've gone. I've worked with school officials and guidance personnel and they've been most cooperative."

The program will consist of 10 Saturday seminars, each to run from 10 a. m. to noon.

The four seminars are being offered by the College's Science and Mathematics Division and the Social Science Division. They are entitled, Nature of Science, The Classical and Medieval Foundations of Western Thought, Dynamics of Sociology, and The United States as a Mass Society —a Critical Appraisal.

Shows Essence of Science

The "Nature of Science" seminar has been designed as an interdisciplinary seminar to show the essence of science and how the various science and mathematics disciplines are inter-related with one another. Some of the topics to be covered are the world of biology, exploring the energy of life, and the ancient and recent ideas on the Cosmos where the student will be shown the impact of the Copernican revolution on the modern philosophic viewpoints These and other topics will seek to show how science and mathematics are interrelated with one another.

The Classical and Medieval Foundations of Western Thought seminar is designed to acquaint the students with intellectual trends before the 15th Century which had a profound influence in shaping modern Western thought. Covered will be a wide variety of topics such as the indebtedness of the West to Platonic and Aristotelian thought or the making of Europe through the Pirenne thesis. Discussion by the students will be emphasized in the class session, and, in addition to the text, students will make use of materials available in the College Library.

The seminar on Dynamics of Sociology is designed to help students learn the basic elements and the concepts and theories of contemporary sociology. Topics to be covered will include social institutions, human groupings, culture and behavior, the crime pattern in America today and the theory of social change.

Critical Appraisal

The seminar on The United States as a Mass Society—a Critical Appraisal, will make a critical appraisal of America as a mass society and examine the historical quest for a national identity. It will pose the thesis of the American as a mass man and there will be a discussion of politics in a mass society. There also will be a focus on the contemporary American's place in political and economic life.

Any interested junior or senior in high school should communicate with his guidance counselor for more information.

Two from Bearsville Injured at Woodstock

Helen L. Turck, 39, of Wittenberg Road, Bearsville, and her 10-year-old son, Frederick, were taken to Benedictine Hospital for treatment of injuries suffered when the 1965 sedan in which they were riding was involved in a one car accident Friday at 3:45 p. m. on Cold Brook Road, Town of Woodstock. Trooper James Kelly, of Lake Katrine sub-station, who investigated, said Mrs. Turck complained of pains in both shoulders and the boy suffered lacerations of the chin and broken front teeth. The car was going north on the road when the driver swerved left to avoid a large pot hole, skidded on ice and struck a utility pole. No summons was issued following the mishap.

Kiwanis Briefed On Activities, Progress in 1966

Activities of the local YMCA and its progress during 1966 were brought before the Kingston Kiwanis Club meeting Thursday by Robert D. Stubbs, director of the YMCA.

The program recognized YMCA Week and was presented with the help of charts indicating both increasing membership and activity.

Stubbs indicated that membership of "building centered youth members" had increased in 1966 from 301 to 505, and that additional membership had been counted in "short term members," who apparently joined the local group for a specific purpose. He said that the local program had served 1341 different youths during the past year, and also pointed to a total of "477 building centered adult members."

Advancement was noted in the "family programs," as well as special youth programs. Stubbs said these activities had been aided greatly by the "partner member efforts" in which he said that some members of Kiwanis had participated.

Other innovations at the local YMCA included a youth employment service, leadership development opportunities, and cooperation with outside groups.

Stubbs emphasized that the YMCA was not a building but a group of people working for development in Christian service.

Johnson to Ask Senate Approval Of Space Treaty

WASHINGTON (AP) — The administration plans to ask the Senate soon for its approval of the newly signed treaty designed to preserve outer space for peaceful uses.

The 2,000-word document was signed late Friday in a White House ceremony that, ironically, coincided with the flash fire at Cape Kennedy, Fla., that killed the first three U.S. Apollo astronauts.

Although officials predict Senate ratification, they anticipate considerable questioning in the Foreign Relations Committee and on the Senate floor — particularly about safeguards for the treaty's ban on nuclear weapons in space.

The United States, the Soviet Union and Great Britain led 60 nations in the historic and colorful ceremony at the White House.

President Johnson told the audience of 350 ambassadors and Washington notables that while disarmament on earth is still unfinished business, "we can at least keep the virus from spreading."

Signing for the Soviet Union, Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin said, "Let us hope we shall not wait long for solution of earthly problems."

U.N. Secretary - General U Thant compared the space accord with the 1959 peace-in-the-Antarctic and the 1963 limited nuclear test-ban treaties as "landmarks of man's march toward international peace and security."

Thant spoke in identical messages to Washington, London and Moscow, where similar ceremonies took place during the day.

Prominent among the nonsigners were Red China and her Communist European colleague, Albania, which also spurned the test-ban treaty.

Those attending, including five other U.S. astronauts, did not learn of the Cape Kennedy tragedy until after the ceremony.

The treaty calls for free and peaceful exploration of outer space, including the moon and other celestial bodies. It prohibits national territorial claims on celestial bodies or their resources.

It also provides for prompt return of astronauts inadvertently landing in other countries and sets forth some broad legal principles concerning space affairs.

Extra Chance Wins Tricks

By Oswald & James Jacoby

One difference between a great player and a good player is that the really great player gives himself every little extra chance.

After this peroration, take a look at the North-South hands and plan your play in four spades against a king of hearts lead.

You might as well start by ducking a heart. Sometimes your opponents will shift suits, but this West did not.

Now you are in your own hand and if you are only a good player you will lead a club to dummy's ace and return the nine spot. West will win with the king and eventually the combination of four clubs and four spades in the East hand will put you one down.

When Sidney Lazard of New Orleans held the South hand he gave himself that one little extra chance. He played the nine of clubs from dummy instead of the ace. From then on everything was duck soup. When he played dummy's ace of clubs later on he picked up West's king. Then all he had to do was to draw as many trumps as he could and tell East that he could have his high trump anytime he wanted it.

At this point we plan to forestall a lot of correspondence by pointing out that Lazard could win the first heart, take a diamond finesse and lead for a heart discard whether or not East ruffed in.

That play would have been a winner but it was an extra losing chance. It would cost the contract if East held the king of diamonds and would only gain one extra trick if it worked.

On the other hand the nine of clubs play stood to gain against lots of card combinations and could only lose in the event of a 5-1 club break.

Love and Kindness Can Go a Long Way

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I have never had to worry about my children's playmates, but something has come up that I don't know how to handle. My 12-year-old daughter has a best friend who, herself, is a very nice little girl. But Abby, her mother!

She ran her husband off when he objected to the way she carried on with other men, and they are now being divorced. In the mentime this mother entertains men friends night and day. Apparently she has no shame before her children from the things her daughter tells my daughter. Abby, some of the goings-on in that house are just terrible!!

I have to'd my daughter the facts of life, but it's nothing compared to what her girl friend tells her. What can I do? Should I forbid my daughter to have anything more to do with her friend? It hardly seems fair, but Abby, I am stumped. STUMPED

DEAR STUMPED: It is extremely unlikely that your daughter will be corrupted by anything she hears from her girl friend. It would be unfair to punish the child for her mother's behavoir.

..You could do the girl a tremendous favor by making her especially welcome in your home, where wholesome attitudes and decency prevail. She needs understanding and kindness — not punishment and penalties for a situation over which she has not control.

DEAR ABBY: My boy friend and I have been going together for eight years — since second grade, and now we aren't getting along so good.

He told me to shut up and then I called him a name. Now he won't even say hi to me.

I love him so much I cry at night. How can I let him know I love him and want him back? I don't think he has anybody else yet. If I don't get him back I will just die, Abby.

Please don't think that just because we are only 15 this is puppy live. It is the REAL THING. SICK WITH LOVE

DEAR SICK: "Sick with love" at 15? Hurt, and sorry and a little blue, perhaps, but surely not "sick with love" at such a tender age. You'll survive, honey. Pretend you don't care, and pretty soon you'll discover you really don't

• • • •

DEAR ABBY: Cyril and I have been married for nearly four years. We were only 18 and 19 when we married. We went together all thru school. We separated three months ago, at his request, but we are still good friends and see each other often. My problem is how to get him to come home and stay home.

I love Cyril and I know he loves me, but here's the situation. When we got married, Cyril had about a year left in the Marine Corps, and he never actually had a life as a so-called civilian all by himself, so he felt he should have his fling now before we had any children, instead of waiting until he was 30 or maybe 35. I know it sounds strange, but in a way it makes a lot of sense to me. How long should his fling take? CYRIL'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: If a man is going to have his "fling," it should be BEFORE he takes a wife. Tell Cyril to come home where he belongs if he wants to stay married. A husband with "flinging" privileges could fling indefinitely. ...

ADVERTISERS NOTES

Brief items concerning local advertisers and national advertisers in

The Kingston Daily Freeman

Prepared By: WARREN W. SIMMONS, Advertising Director

SATURDAY, JANUARY 28, 1967

The Advertising Council, supported by American business and the advertising and communications industries, is a non-profit organization devoted to promoting voluntary citizen actions in solving national problems.

Newspapers and other advertising-communications media contributed no less than $236 million worth of advertising for the public good last year. All of this was donated through The Advertising Council.

"Impressive as this figure is", says Edwin W. Ebel, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Council, "we look forward to even greater achievement for the coming year."

The Advertising Council is a non-profit and non-partisan organization, which conducts only national campaigns in the public interest. "Through advertising", the new report points out, "it involves the public in the solutions of problems in contemporary life as broadly as possible. The Council reflects the truly united efforts of business, and demonstrates how the private sector in our country works voluntarily for the public good."

During the past fiscal year the Council conducted campaigns on behalf of a wide range of 102 projects or organizations approved by its Directors and its Public Policy Committee. Nineteen of these were major campaigns, for both private groups and government agencies, to which all advertising media contributed vast amounts of space and time so that the messages could be exposed to public view.

The list of beneficiaries of these contributions by newpapers, magazines, radio and television networks and stations, transit advertising, outdoor advertising and direct mail companies, ranges from A to Z. Among them were: Aid to Higher Education, American Red Cross, Boys' Clubs, Boy Scouts, Continue Your Education, Girl Scouts, Mental Retardation, Peace Corps Volunteers, Religion in American Life, Traffic Safety, United Negro College Fund, United Community Campaigns, USO, YMCA, YWCA, and Zip Code.

One of the major projects in the area of social justice is Equal Employment Opportunity, to help companies secure the trained employes they seek from the minority groups. This is jointly sponsored by The Advertising Council and Plans for Progress, representing several hundred "fair employment" companies.

Responding to a specific request from President Johnson and Secretary Fowler of the Treasury, the Council is opening up a special concerted drive to step up the sale of U. S. Savings Bonds, as one means of holding back the worrisome inflationary trend in the national economy. At a recent meeting, the Industries Advisory Committee of the Council voted to back the campaign through their Payroll Savings Plans.

All Council campaigns are created by highly skilled task forces volunteered by leading advertising agencies. In a typical year, some 25 different agency task forces work on these projects without fees, commissions or any other compensation. On the major Council propects, highly-placed advertising executives of some of the most famous American corporations serve as volunteer coordinators.

Started as the War Advertising Council in 1942, the public service advertising wing of American business has continued to contribute its services for the public good for nearly a quarter century. The Industries Advisory Committee is made up of top executives of more than 50 "blue chip" companies which help raise the operating funds donated by several hundred corporations each year. Additional financial support comes from leading advertising, publishing and broadcasting associations all of which are represented on the Council's Board of Directors.

Illegal Use of Credit Cards — A $20 Million Racket

That credit card in your wallet may be just a bit of plastic with your name on it but it's as good as cash and if it falls into the wrong hands you may be surprised how fast it can be turned into big money.

It's happening more and more these days.

Reports to the National Better Business Bureau indicate that upward of $20 million is lost yearly in the U. S. through the illegal use of credit cards by a new breed of thief who has only to forge a signature to sample the good things in life.

About 20 million Americans carry one or more credit or charge-account cards and 1.5 million of the cards are reported lost or stolen annually. Estimates of the number stolen range up to 300,000.

The black market in stolen credit cards is big business from coast to coast and there is some evidence that organized crime has moved into the field, particularly the theft of credit cards used to buy airline tickets.

A few years ago a burglar who found a credit card in a wallet he stole would probably toss it away. Today he sells it for a price.

According to some reports, a "hot" credit card will sell for as much as $250 in cities like New York, Los Angeles and Miami, where travelers' credit cards are accepted as readily as cash and no questions asked.

If fradulent use is made of a stolen credit card, who pays?

Generally speaking, the rightful owner of the card pays if he has not notified the issuer of the card that it has been lost or stolen.

There usually is no problem if the loss or theft is detected immediately and the issuer of the card is promptly notified by telephone and then in writing. But it sometimes takes days, weeks or months to discover the loss.

Few credit card holders are really aware of how valuable their cards can be. The man who is exceedingly careful with $10 bills will scarcely give a thought to his credit card until it turns up missing and somebody else has started to run up charges in his name.

It can happen this way:

Three Long Island housewives were recently accused of making more than 650 fraudulent purchases charged to stolen cards in a month-long shopping spree. The used the cards to buy almost $16,000 worth of merchandise, returning some of it for cash refunds.

A top official of one department store chain, noting the increasing rate of fraudulent purchasing, said as many as 50 accounts a month may be fraudulently used, with an average balance of $400 in each account.

Although some credit card company officials tend to doubt the involvement of organized crime in the theft of credit cards, law-enforcement officials have concluded that many thefts today are the work of a sophisticated underworld syndicate.

They note that major cities have organized rings that encourage pickpockets, burglars and even such unsuspected people as parking lot attendants, chambermaids, masseurs and others to steal the cards and then filter them back into circulation.

When arrested, one man was carrying more than 100 credit cards, plus $5,000 in stolen travelers' checks. He allegedly bought the cards for $100 to $200 from picpockets and burglars and then sold sets of four for $1,000. His gross sales for a six-month period reportedly topped $100,000.

It is estimated that the illegal use of credit cards is costing domestic airlines at least $4 million a year. Tickets purchased with stolen credit cards are turned back for cash rebates or sold at discounts ranging from 20 to 50 per cent.

A 45-year-old Pittsburgh gambler was accused of running up a tab of $125,000 in a cross-country spending binge. When arrested, police found $10,000 in his pockets. Most of this money came from peddling discounted airline tickets charged on several credit cards mislaid by reputable businessmen.

One man tried to sell an undercover agent working with a district attorney's office $1,365 worth of airline tickets for $700. When the agent stalled, the man upped the offer to $60,000 worth of tickets for $30,000. All the tickets were bought with stolen credit cards.

Investigators have established the fact that some rings now provide purchasers of ""hot" credit cards with identification kits that include forged drivers' licenses and social security cards to match the signature on the stolen cards.

Other methods used to turn "hot" credit cards into cash are as imaginative as they are varied.

In one ploy a loan shark gives a stolen credit card to a merchant who owes him money. The merchant pays off the shark in cash and covers his loss by filing phony invoices with credit card firms, supposedly for goods sold to card holders.

A Miami man didn't bother to steal a credit card. He paid the initial fee for the credit card firm with a rubber check. By the time the check bounced, he had charged his air fare to Europe and was living in luxury at the best hotels in Rome, Paris and Vienna. By the end of six months, $28,000 worth of charge slips had filtered back to the company's offices.

In this jet age, a card stolen in New York can be used illegally in Los Angeles or Paris in a matter of hours. And it could take 30 to 90 days before the credit card company sends its advisory to clients not to honor a stolen card. By then, the thief may have begun to buy-now-and-pay-later with another stolen card.

A number of insurance companies or gorups are now writing specific policies that cover you against loss or adding endorsements to existing policies. A typical policy covering you for three years against loss up to $1,000 costs about $6.

One credit card firm gives holders unlimited liability coverage over $100. It will protect the card holder against all loss, including the $100, if notified of loss or theft prior to fraudulent use of the card.

All credit card firms put out "hot sheets" lising stolen cards

Groff's 32 Paces Senators to 9th Win of Season

That tough two-day weekend trip to the Metropolitan area which were supposed to put some wrinkles in coach Mike Perry's brow, started in splendid fashion last night at Staten Island.

Rolling up 56 points in the second half, the Senators of Ulster Community College walloped the home side, 97-72, for their 9th win in 14 starts and one of their most impressive, by far.

Leading by only three points, 41-38, at the interim, the flashy visitors tore the losers apart in the second half and won going away. In committing only nine personal fouls, the locals also set a club mark for the least fouls in a game.

Has 33 Points

Jim Groff, promoted to the starting lineup only last Tuesday, responded with a 33-point show for the Senators. However, the other four starters also turned in stellar performances.

Captain Brad Meyer finished with 26 points, Frank Roselli added 17 and Bill Boines made 16. Rod Chando had only five but he directed the attack from his guard position. Meyer and Boiens dominated the backboards.

Ulster moves to Fashion Institute for a game at 2 this afternoon. Off last evening's performance, it might be a happy trip up the Thruway.

Duke, SMU, Air Force On Army Grid Slate

WEST POINT, N. Y.—Opponents from the south and the far west dominate the Army home football schedule for 1967. Virginia and Duke from the south, Stanford and Utah from the west and Rutgers from the east are the five home games for the fall of 1967, according to Colonel Jerry G. Capka, Army Athletic Director.

The national scope of Army competition is reflected in the five games away from West Point. Three eastern trips being combined with one to the southwest to meet Southern Methodist and the other to Colorado to play the Air Force Academy.

Army will open its schedule Sept. 23, with a home game against Virginia and will conclude its ten-game slate with the traditional battle against Navy Dec. 2, in Philadelphia.

Last fall the Cadets finished with an 8-2 record, defeating Kansas State, Holy Cross, Penn State, Rutgers, Pittsburgh, George Washington, California and Navy and losing only to Notre Dame's national champions and Gator Bowl champion Tennessee.

The record was Army's best since the 1958 eleven finished with an 8-0-1 mark.

The official 1967 schedule follows:

Sept. 23—Virginia at West Point
30—Boston College at Boston
Oct. 7—Duke at West Point
13—Southern Methodist at Dallas (Friday night)
21—Rutgers at West Point
28—Stanford at West Point (Homecoming)
Nov. 4—Air Force at Colorado
11—Utah at West Point

Upstaters Use Solid Defense In 65-52 Victory

Potsdam State, which specializes in defense, limited the Hawks of New Paltz State to only 20 field goals in 40 minutes and won a 65-52 SUNYAC cage tilt last night at Elting Gymnasium.

The upstaters, who have 2-0 in conference play and 8-1 for the year, led by six points, 31-25, at halftime and kept the home side bottled up most of the second half. It was a solid defensive show.

Though he tried several combinations, coach Doug Sheppard couldn't find one to score with consistency. Tom Kenney, the former New Paltz Central ace, led with 12 points. High scoring Ed Shuster was limited to 11.

New Paltz is idle until Wednesday when it hosts the Blackbirds of Long Island University, one of the top small college powerhouses in the East.

Liberty Nips RVC Grapplers

It was close but no cigar for the Rondout Valley wrestling as it was nipped, 28-21, by Liberty, one of the DUSO League powerhouses. The home grapplers won the final match of the evening to clinch the verdict.

DePaul Decisions Niagara, 78-65

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The DePaul basketball players stayed up most of the night cramming for examinations, while Niagara University players spent 18 hours on a train trip from Buffalo to Chicago for the game.

Apparently the exams were less taxing than the train trip, because the Chicagoans coasted to a 78-65 victory over the visitors Friday night.

Erroll Palmer and Rich Shealey led DePaul with 17 points each.

In opening round games Friday night of the first annual Monroe County Collegiate Basketball Tournament, Rochester Tech defeated St. John Fisher, 81-71, and Roberts Wesleyan downed Brockport State 92-66.

In Triple Tie As Newburgh Upsets Middies

Kingston High School's "century" club hit that mark for the third time in the past four games while walloping inept Port Jervis, 100-55, last night at the losers' court.

The win was an especially pleasing one for coach John Gilligan's cagers because it enabled to move into a three-way tie for first place in the DUSO as Newburgh Free Academy upset visiting Middletown, 65-61.

In piling up their 100 points, the Maroon cagers became the first cage team in the school's history to score at least 100 or more more than twice. Since the jayvees also went over the century mark in winning the opener, it marked the first time that both local clubs turned the trick in the same evening.

Play Only a Half

As has been the usual case during the season, Gilligan used his first team for only a half and reserves saw action the rest of the way.

Big Leon Hanna finished with 17 points to lead the attack. Bruce Gilligan and A. J. Murphy had 15 each and Ken Gilligan scored 14. Ed Byman paced the second group with 10 markers.

Newburgh handed the Middies their initial DUSO loss and the Goldies led from start to finish. The visitors shaved a 15-point fourth quarter deficit but couldn't draw even.

Steve Gruberg led the winners with 26 points. Gene Gillen's 19 were tops for the visitors.

Facing their biggest challenge with the aplomb of pros, the unbeaten Dukes of Marlboro practically clinched their second straight UCAL title as they turned back visiting Rondout Valley, 67-45, last night before an SRO crowd at the cramped winners' gym.

In beating the Ganders for the second time this season, coach Ed Sagarese's cagers led at the quarter stops and threw a tenacious defense at the visitors.

Roy McAteer picked up the scoring slack for the home side with 22 points. Richie Faulk was below his season's average as he netted only 12. However, this was a team effort and the defending champions now hold a two-game edge with only four remaining.

Gordie Taylor and Pete Kilduff were high for the Ganders.

In the jayvee contest, Marlboro ended the unbeaten streak compiled by Rondout with an easy, 51-25, decision.

UCLA vs. Illinois and Brigham Young vs. Chicago Loyola, postponed, snow

UCLASnowedOut, Will Play Sunday

CHICAGO (AP) —Top-ranked UCLA will meet Illinois Sunday in a game at Chicago Stadium which was rescheduled from Friday because of a crippling snowstorm which paralyzed transpotation.

The second game of the planned Sunday doubleheade, which would pit Brigham Young University against Loyola of Chicago, may not be played. Brigham Young is a Mormon school and that religion prohibits Sunday sports activity.

However, no decision was expected until later in the day, and Stadium officials said the tripleheader Saturday night definitely will be played.

"In any case, there will be a UCLA-Illinois game on Sunday," a spokesman said.

The plane bringing sensational sophomore Lew Alcindor and his UCLA teammates to Chicago was diverted to St. Louis. The team spent 12 hours on the train struggling to snowbound Chicago.

The storm snowed under a handful of college basketball games, a women's bowling tournament in Chicago and a college swim meet in Athens, Ohio.

Don Massengale's 132 Score Leads Golfers in U. S. Open

By BOB MYERS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The life and experiences of a professional golfer can be a changing thing, subject to change by the day and week, as Don Massengale, a young pro from Texas, can attest.

Massengale, a graduate of the sand greens of his native Jacksboro, Tex., and a former star golfer at Texas Christian University before he turned pro in 1960, was the leading man today going into the third round of the $100,000 Los Angeles open.

A week ago, he was in the midst of four rounds of play in the Bing Crosby in which he could not break 80 during the entire tournament.

Massengale now has his two best ever back-to-back rounds of 67-65 for a 36-hole score of 132, tying the tournament record set in 1956 by Lloyd Mangrum for the Rancho Golf Club course.

And he held a lead of two strokes over Arnold Palmer, 10 over National Open champion Billy Casper Jr., and 11 over Jack Nicklaus.

This may seem heady stuff for the tall, personable Texan. But he seemed unawed. After all, Don captured the Crosby tournament last year, and also the Canadian Open.

Records? "I don't worry about records,' Massengale said, explaining that he was far more interested in beating some guys. Some guys could be Palmer or any of the other 86 pros left in play for the final two rounds today and Sunday.

64 for Arnie

Palmer blasted out a seven-under par 64 Friday. He finished ahead of Massengale, and it appeared the round would belong to Arnie and his army.

His score over the par 36-35—71 Rancho course was a brilliant 32-32—64 for 134.

But Massengale began to make noises with a 32 at the turn, and he came home in 33 for 65.

Palmer had eight one-putt greens, and only one bogey — he three-putted the par 3 third hole — in a round that compared to his 62 in the third round here a year ago.

Massengale had six birdies, no bogeys, and missed only two greens, each time chipping on in great fashion to get his par.

Five shots back of Massengale were the first round leader, Jacky Cupit, with 66-71; Bill Martindale and Gay Brewer, each 67-70, and Bert Yancey, 67-70.

Among those who failed to qualify for the final rounds — 145 was the cutoff score — were two past winners here, Dow Finsterwald and Ken Venturi, as well as New Zealand's Bob Charles and Lionel and Jay Hebert.

Miss Richey Gains Net Tourney Finals

ADELAIDE, Australia (AP) — Nancy Richey will take United States' hopes of regaining the long-lost women's singles title into the final of the Australian Lawn Tennis Championships after trouncing an Australian challenger Friday.

Miss Richey of Dallas, Tex., will oppose top-seeded Lesley Turner of Australia for the crown Sunday, trying to become the first American to win since Shirley Fry in 1957.

The 24-year-old Texan, relying on a persistent backcourt game, swept past Kerry Melville in the semifinals, 6-4, 6-1.

Arthur Ashe of Richmond, Va., was the only American left in the men's semifinals which also included three Australians. He meets John Newcombe in the semis today as he aims to become the first American men's winner since Alex Olmedo in 1958.

Beacon, seeking a fifth straight championship, overwhelmed Arlington, 89-55, despite the fact Gary McGray played less than two minutes.

Roosevelt broke loose from a close first half to beat Saugerties, 81-52, and drop the Sawyers in the basement.

Lourdes clung to third place with a 67-49 triumph at Poughkeepsie while Cardinal Farley broke into the win column for the first time by upsetting Wappingers, 41-35.

McCray was benched because of an infraction by coach Dick DiBiaso but the other Beacon players didn't feel his loss. Nate Milligan (21), Charlie Moore (19) and Ed Valentine (16) paced the Bulldogs. Mark McCandlish was tops for Arlington with 14 points.

Rich Rinaldi's 32 points led the usual well-balanced Roosevelt attack. Jack Keenan led Saugerties with 17. The Sawyers were hampered most of the second half when starter Roger Praetorius went out on fouls.

The Sawyers jayvees squeezed by Roosevelt, 64-41, as Tom Greco hit for 17 points and Bill Benham added 15.

Mike Eidel had 13 baskets for 26 points as Lourdes easily beat Poughkeepsie. Richie Lawrence had 17 for the Pioneers, who fell below .500 in league play.

Farley surprised Wappingers with an 18-point explosion in the final period. The Falls led, 28-23, after three periods.

Ferraro Given Good Chance To Be Yankee Regular in '67

By ED PALLADINO
Freeman Sports Staff

"Despite what is being said and written, third base is wide open and Mike Ferraro has a good chance to commence the season as a starter."

Those are the words manager Ralph Houk told members of the press, television and radio at the Yankee Caravan, which stopped Friday at the Ten Eyck Hotel in Albany.

The Yankee manager was one of several members of the Bomber official family speaking to the scribes. He talked in optimistic tones when evaluating the chances of the Yankees escaping the American League cellar this coming season.

"We feel we have a good chance to challenge for the pennant. Our team is young, the pitching staff is solid and if youngsters like Ferraro, Bobby Murcer, Steve Whitaker and others come through, we will surprise a lot of the so-called experts," Houk added.

Was Impressed

He said though the Yankees purchased Charlie Smith from the St. Louis Cardinals, he is not automatically going to start at third base. "I was very much impressed with Ferraro during last September when we brought him up. His minor league record is not spectacular but he has done well with each advancement and we feel he will be a regular third baseman on this club for many years to come," he added.

Also lavishing praise on the former Kingston High School star were Phil Rizzuto and Joe Garagiola, the Yankee broadcasting wits. Rizzuto said he was impressed with Ferraro's stance at the plate. "Mike doesn't have a hitch like many of the youngsters and he swings the bat well," Rizzuto said.

Garagiola, who delighted the scribes with some humorous remarks, said Ferraro is not a spectacular player, but "he grows on you."

When queried by this reporter about Ferraro's future if he doesn't make the team this season as a starter, Houk hinted he would rather have Mike farmed to the club's Triple A team in Syracuse than see him sitting on the bench as a utility player.

Al Downing, who represented the players, said he is looking forward to having a big season and is confident the Yankees can turn around and make a strong run at Baltimore for the pennent.

Stadium Improvements

Michael Burke, the club's new president, told of the improvements being made at the stadium. "We're going to give the fans some exciting baseball and we're going to make them comfortable," Burke said.

Also speaking was Jackie Farrell, head of the Speakers' Bureau and a long - time favorite of Hudson Valley baseball buffs.

Bob Fishel, the public relations director of the club, was master of ceremonies.

Wilt Wakes Up, So Does Philly

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — That familiar 7-foot-1 player with a goatee and wearing No. 13 on his back in Friday night's Philadelphia 76ers-Cincinnati Royals game was really Wilt Chamberlain, although it would be hard to tell it from the scoring figures.

Chamberlain, who holds the single-game record of 100 points, took only four shots and scored just five points through the first three quarters of the 76ers 110-107 victory.

It wasn't that Chamberlain didn't have the opportunities to score. He apparently chose not to go for the basket, consistently handing off to driving teammates.

The sleeping giant finally awoke in the fourth quarter in which he scored 12 of his 17 points and led the rallying 76ers to their victory, the 21st in the last 23 games.

Asked after the game what the problem was, Chamberlain replied, "the object of the game is to win and we won."

That's all he would say as the big fellow dressed quickly and left the Philadelphia locker room.

Blow Big Lead

The 76ers, while Chamberlain was on his self-imposed scoring famine, blew a 15-point lead as the Royals came on to lead them 98-95 with a little more than four minutes remaining.

LaRusso Plans To File Suit

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) —Rudy LaRusso, the Ivy Leaguer with muscles, says he does not plan to play professional basketball any longer but does plan to:

1. Become a stockbroker.
2. Sue the National Basketball Association.

His lawyer, Fred Rosenfeld, told a news conference Friday suit will be filed next week for damages based on the NBA Board of Governors' ruling that the suspended Los Angeles Laker forward must play for the Detroit Pistons or not at all.

"As far as I'm concerned," said LaRusso, "the league alienated themselves from me."

Rosenfeld did not specify the amount to be asked, but said the suit would seek compensation for LaRusso's loss of basketball income. The 29-year-old seven - year veteran's contract had a year to run.

The Lakers won't be named specifically as defendants unless it becomes known that the club voted with the board of governors against LaRusso, Rosenfeld said.

LaRusso retired after he was traded to Detroit in a deal that sent Baltimore's Mel Counts to Los Angeles and Detroit's Ray Scott to Baltimore. After the Lakers reinstated LaRusso and said the deal was void, the board ruled Thursday that the trade is valid, even though the Pistons may be left empty-handed.

Rosenfeld said he sent telegrams to the board and the Lakers the day before the board's ruling. The telegrams said that if LaRusso were not allowed to fulfill his Laker contract, legal action would result.

He said the suit will be based on the contention that LaRusso's contract was not transferred to the Pistons because LaRusso failed to report to Detroit.

Southern Illini Gain 58-55 Win

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Southern Illinois, the small college giant killer with victories over such major powers as Louisville, Texas Western, Wichita and St. Louis, almost was upset by Abilene Christian. The Salukis, No. 1 in The Associated Press small college basketball poll, came from 15 points back on their home court in Carbondale, Ill. to beat the invading Texans 58-55 Friday night. Abilene started the game with a so-so 7-7 record, the Salukis with 11-2.

The unbeaten UCLA Bruins, top-ranked in the AP's major poll, were snowed out of their game against Illinois in Chicago because of a record 23-inch snow fall. The game, part of a doubleheader program that also listed Brigham Young vs. Chicago Loyola, was rescheduled for Sunday.

Although the Chicago Stadium twin bill was postponed, DePaul whipped Niagara 78-65 on the Blue Demons' campus gym.

The Purple Eagles of Niagara Falls, N.Y. arrived after an 18-hour train trip from Buffalo. Paced by Alan Schug, with 13 points, they pulled to within 56-50 in the second half before DePaul pulled away.

Holy Cross won its fifth straight by defeating Colgate 87-67 at Hamilton, N.Y. while Miami of Florida also won on the road, beating Florida Southern 55-49.

In home court victories on Friday's slim program, Colorado State University whipped the Air Force 81-62, Bates crushed Coast Guard Academy 116-75 and Washington humbled Montana 85-72.

Benvenuti, Griffith Set for Title Bout

NEW YORK (AP) — Italy's Nino Benvenuti, who wants to swap his European middleweight title for Emile Griffith's World 160-pound crown, will get his chance sometime in March.

Benvenuti, who has lost only one of 70 pro fights, and Griffith, who successfully defended his title last Monday night by outpointing Joey Archer, agreed Friday to a March championship bout in Madison Square Garden. Harry Markson, the Garden's boxing chief, said the fight would be held as soon as possible after March 15.

Lindsay Scott Wins Feature at Yonkers

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP) — Lindsay Scott, driven by Del Insko, posted a 1½-length victory over 5-2 favorite Van Rebeck in Friday night's feature $7,500 Stamford Pace before 13,920 at Yonkes Raceway. Time for the mile on a good track was 2:05.

Leased by Rainbow International of Canada and trained by Steve Reeves, the 9-year-old son of Last Scott paid $7.80, $4 and $2.60. Van Rebeck, coupled with Vicar Hanover as part of the Billy Haughton Stable, returned $3.60 and $2.40 while Waiuku, winner of three straight until Friday night, was $2.60 for show.

Cong guerrillas drifting about in sampans during the night.

Helicopter pilots reported destroying 33 sampans and killing 44 Viet Cong Friday night and this morning while flying "firefly missions" 28 miles southwest of Saigon.

On these missions, one helicopter beams its searchlights on the enemy while two flanking gunship helicopters open up with automatic weapons.

In air action over North Vietnam Friday U.S. pilots flew 85 bombing missions. They concentrated all their strikes in the lower part of the country as poor weather covered the northern portions.

During the raids, an Air Force F4C Phantom jet was shot down by Communist ground fire, U.S. headquarters said.

The two-man crew nursed the crippled craft out to sea in the Gulf of Tonkin, bailed out and were rescued by a U.S. Marine helicopter within about 15 minutes of landing in the water.

A U.S. spokesman said one of the fliers turned on his radio while in his rubber dinghy and listened to the arrangements for his rescue.

The plane was the 467th announced U.S. loss in the two years of aerial bombings of the north.

rural areas to show the Mao flag.

In Fukien Province air force helicopters dropped 100,000 leaflets on Foochow.

Despite these signs of solidarity, the Peking People's Daily complained today that Maoist organizations are not all thinking alike. It listed these errors: "Sectionalism, individualism, exaggeration, democratization, disorganized viewpoints, habitualism."

The statement hinted at a crackdown on Red Guard leaders and groups which had dared to voice criticism of Mao's principal lieutenants who run the "cultural revolution" group.

Picket Soviets

The New China News Agency reported that thousands of Chinese students staged a rally in Peking at the Soviet Embassy Friday to protest alleged attacks on Chinese students in Moscow Wednesday.

In a dispatch from Moscow, NCNA carried a statement by the departing students which said nine others were so badly hurt they could not leave the Soviet capital.

The statement said that as the students read a quotation from Mao in front of Lenin's tomb and then sang "The Internationale," "a great number of troops, police and plain-clothesmen mobilized earlier by the Soviet authorities started to attack us and beat us up, creating a shocking bloody incident."

which went well, his brown-haired wife said: "I was just waiting for the flotation ring to be placed around the spacecraft. There really were no anxious moments, but I hope Gus doesn't make another flight — anyways soon."

That flight, in 1965, was his last.

Mrs. White stood by in Houston in 1965 as her husband became the first American to venture outside a spaceship in orbit.

She was thrilled by his 21-minute adventure and reported son Edward and daughter Bonnie were so proud "they could bust — they just don't know what to do."

Donald Chaffee, a barnstormer in aviation's scarf-and-goggle days, had a dream that died

The elder Chaffee said earlier this week at his home in Grand Rapids, Mich.: "I like to feel that everything Roger has done is like taking up where I left off.

"In 1927 I was flying a Waco biplane after four hours of instruction.

"My grandmother, who loaned me the money to buy the plane, took her first airplane ride with me when she was 85 — and she crossed the prairie in a covered wagon with a rifle across her knees."

Clarkson Skaters Topple Colgate, 5-2

Clarkson put together three goals in the second period and two in the third to defeat Colgate, 5-2, in a hockey game played Friday night at the War Memorial Auditorium in Syracuse.

Kevin Fleming scored both Colgate goals, while four Clarkson players scored, including Brian Dolling's two markers.

At Povidence, R.I., Friday night, St. Lawrence skated to a 5-4 victory over the Providence Friars.

New Orleans Club Picks Tom Fears

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — Tom Fears, who was schooled in coaching by the great Vince Lombardi, has been selected to mold New Orleans' new National Football League team into "a championship contender as soon as possible."

Fears' selection as head coach, was announced Friday night by John W. Mecom Jr., president and chief stockholder of the New Orleans Saints.

Fears, 43, was chief offensive coach for the fledgling Atlanta Falcons this past season.

It was learned that Fears got a five-year contract. No salary was disclosed by Mecom.

"We will be a well-disciplined ball club," said Fears, when asked how he intended to coach.

Fears, now a balding 43, was a top receiver for the Los Angeles Rams for nine seasons. His NFL record of 18 pass receptions in one game still stands.

In 1950, Fears was the NFL's Most Valuable Player.

He retired from playing at the end of the 1956 season and three years later joined the Packer coaching staff during Lombardi's first year. He went to the Rams coaching staff for 1960 and 1961, then returned to Green Bay for four campaigns.

and possibly offering rewards for information leading to their recovery. One company uses a vast computer system to store update data on the buying patterns and travel habits of card holders. In this way, out-of-pattern purchases are detected and the fraudulent use of cards caught much sooner.

A number of companies in the retailing industry are turning to electronic data processing to track down lost or stolen cards. Credit card firms are now re-issuing cards more and more frequently, cutting down the life expectancy of one that has been stolen.

If the credit card issuers have become more sophisticated in their approach to the problem of lost or stolen cards, the methods used by the criminal element have become increasingly inventive.

This is the best advice:

— Take special care in the use of you credit card.

— Promptly notify the issuer of loss. Telephone or wire and then follow up with a letter.

— Never lend your credit card.

— Destroy all out-of-date cards and unsolicited cards received in the mail that you don't intend to use.

Questions and Answers About Advertising

Q — If we women are honest with ourselves, we'll readily admit we don't know why we act the way we do under certain circumstances. Equally true, it's difficult for us to state why we prefer one product over another at a particular moment. If we're this unsure, how can anyone predict the effectiveness of any advertisement?

A — The manufacturer can't always predict the effectiveness of an advertising campaign as accurately as he'd like. But he uses the best available pretesting methods to try to forecast as accurately as possible the results of his contemplated investment in advertising.

There are many methods of pre-testing advertising, and they all have their values and their weaknesses. Some are highly technical, and some are very simple. But usually, before a campaign is launched, it is exposed to hundreds, often thousands, of consumers who are considered representative prospective purchasers of the product.

Because, as you say, women are so unsure, the best-laid tests often go astray and lead to the wrong conclusions. This is one of the calculated risks of any business involving mass reaction. It's true of the theater, of motion pictures, of television programs, of books, of advertising, of every attempt to predict the response of the consumer.

Death Toll Is 28 In Chicago After Record Snowfall

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Looters roamed Chicago's streets today and all police leaves were canceled as Illinois, Indiana and Michigan struggled free of a suffocating blanket of snow.

The record storm left at least 37 dead in Illinois — 28 in Chicago — as well as 10 in Michigan, 5 in Wisconsin and 3 in Indiana.

Also Hit Canada

The storm slipped across the border into Canada, spraying rain and snow on Toronto and pelting the Laurentians of Quebec with what was expected to be a foot of snow. But its main force had been spent.

The Weather Bureau reckoned the blizzard "one of the biggest snowstorms of the century." The 23 inches dumped on Chicago in 29 hours and 8 minutes surpassed the 19.2-inch record for a single storm set March 25-26, 1930.

The worst single snowfall was in Kalamazoo, Mich.—28 inches. The snow blanket, averaging two feet in depth, stretched in a northeast Missouri to Lower Michigan.

Cost Set at $35 Million

Chicago was hardest hit. Civic leaders estimated the storm would cost the city $35 million in lost business.

Temperatures tumbled toward zero in Chicago as police chased looters from the streets. The bone-numbing cold made it harder to get the snow off the streets so residents could get back to their cars, their jobs, their schools and their families.

A 10-year-old girl was shot to death in a West Side storm during an exchange of gunfire between police and about 50 looters. A security guard was shot in the wrist and wounded during another looting episode in the same neighborhood, an area of West Roosevelt Road plagued last summer by three nights of Negro rioting and looting finally quelled by National Guardsmen.

Hundreds of cars were buried in snowdrifts. Families walked through four-lane arteries usually clogged with motor traffic, greeting neighbors with not a car in sight.

Cut Cuban Power

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Cuba's capital city today faced a month to six weeks of short rations of electric current, a Havana broadcast said.

The broadcast, monitored in Miami, said extensive repairs are being made in several power plants which serve the city of 1.6 million population.

Interruptions of current may occur between 6 and 9 p.m. in Havana and environs, the broadcast said. It admonished householders to use only essential electric lights and appliances.

UCCC to Offer Evening Course On Anthropology

Area residents will have an opportunity to take part in an Introduction to Anthropology course during the Spring Semester under the auspices of the Social Science Department at Ulster County Community College.

The evening course will be offered at the temporary college campus, 214 West Chestnut Street, Tuesdays from 7 to 9:40 p.m. starting Feb. 7.

This course is an introduction to the study of human behavior in both an evolutionary and cultural area. The antiquity of man, his prehistoric achievements and the development of culture in the primitve and modern world will be viewed during the semester.

The course instructor will be Robert A. Kurland, an associate professor at the College. He has an AA degree from Hillyear Junior College, a BS degree from Springfield College, and an MSW degree from Tulane University.

Registration for returning part-time evening students will be Wednesday, Feb. 1 and registration for new part-time students will be Thursday, Feb. 2. The hours for both are from 6 to 9 p.m.

Travia Opposes Rocky's ACCESS School Proposal

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Assembly Speaker Anthony J. Travia has thrown a roadblock in front of Gov. Rockefeller's plan for educational and vocational training centers, known as ACCESS.

The governor's plan, would establish 45 "area centers of cooperative educational services," to provide vocational and technical training services for the handicapped and retarded children. In addition, the centers would provide guidance counseling, psychological services, music, art and physical training.

The Associated Press learned Friday, however, that Democrat Travia does not favor the measure.

Rockefeller's plan has drawn criticism since it was first introduced two years ago.

Sen. D. Clinton Dominick III, the chief Senate sponsor of the bill, said he would continue to work for its passage. The Newburgh Republican said a shortage of trained man power in the state was a powerful argument for better vocational training facilities.

Hesiod (700's B.C.) was the first major Greek poet after Homer.

Baker Case Goes To Jury; Faces 48 Years in Jail

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Bobby Baker case is slated to go to the jury today. If convicted on all nine counts, the former secretary to Senate Democrats could be sentenced to 48 years in prison and fined $47,000.

U.S. Dist. Judge Oliver Gasch begins at midmorning delivering his voluminous instructions to the six-man, six-woman jury. It appeared virtually certain the panel would begin its deliberations before nightfall.

Baker, 38, is charged with larceny, tax evasion, conspiracy and other offenses, but the central accusation in the three-week trial has been that he stole most or all of $100,000 in "sentorial campaign contributions" made by California savings and loan executives.

In closing arguments Friday, defense attorney Edward Bennett Williams said these "flint-eyed, marble-hearted tycoons" knew what they were doing.

He said they collected the money, which was mostly in $100 bills, after the late Sen. Robert S. Kerr of Oklahoma "gave up on" a proposal he had previously backed. The proposed legislation would have meant millions of dollars of new taxation on stock savings and loan associations.

"You'd have a better chance," he said, "of getting out of the Louvre Museum with the Venus de Milo under your arm, than you would have getting $100,000 from those tycoons unless they knew where it was going and why, whether it got there and when."

He asked the jury: "Have you ever heard of a larceny case in which the victims made no complaint?"

In his final argument, Prosecutor William O. Bittman accused the defense of maligning a dead man of blameless reputation.

He told the jury to make no mistake, that what the defense was implying was that Kerr took "a $100,000 bribe to fix legislation."

Damage Slight In Manor Fire

An early morning fire at Pine Hill burned through wall partitions behind a fake fireplace and left damage estimated at approximately $200 to Howland Manor, located at Highmount and occupied by members of a ski club at the time. Fire Chief Charles Smith, of Pine Hill Fire Department, said he was in command of two trucks which sped to the scene at 12:50 a. m. when a call was received from occupants of the three-story building, which is currently rented to a ski club. He said the fire had spread from the fireplace into the walls of the house and was easily brought under control by using extinguishers and booster lines. No injuries were reported to either guest or firemen; skiers did not have to vacate the premises and went back to bed after firemen left the scene some two hours after arrival.

Warn Hazardous Driving After Snow and Winds

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

State Police issued hazardous driving warnings for wide areas of Upstate New York today as flurries and snow squalls swept across icy, slippery roads.

The lingering snow followed chilling rains and high winds that brought property damage and power failures to portions of the area Friday.

By daybreak, much of the North Country had from 3 to 7 inches of new snow, with visibility ranging from good to poor. Central and south-central points reported up to 3 inches of new accumulation, with more flurries and occasional snow squalls expected.

Mishaps Kill Three

Three pedestrians — two teenage girls and a 71-year-old man —died beneath the wheels of automobiles in two accidents Friday night on rain-soaked roads near Rochester.

Along the southeastern shore of Seneca Lake in the Finger Lakes region, winds of gale force uprooted and splintered trees and demolished farm buildings.

One of those suffering property damage was the state's agriculture commissioner, Don J. Wickham. A storage building on his farm in Schuyler County was all but demolished by the wind, with only one wall remaining intact.

'Like A Tornado'

"It was like a tornado," said James Hazlitt, a fruit grower who lives nearby. "The winds were roaring and howling."

A portion of a 136-by-30-foot cattle shed from an adjacent farm landed on Hazlitt's front lawn, while other wreckage littered Route 414.

Falling trees brought down power and telephone lines in the area. Similar occurrences caused brief blackouts for 1,000 customers in Baldwinsville, northwest of Syracuse, and 375 customers in the Cortland area.

Channel 10 Hit

Radio Station WHEN, Syracuse, was forced off the air for 28 minutes because of a transmitter failure caused by the high winds.

The two girls, Donna L. Phelix, 15, of Palmyra, and Hazel Vogt, 16 of Macedon were killed when struck by an automobile while walking along Route 31 east of Palmyra. Investigators said it was raining at the time.

In the Rochester suburb of Greece, Norman Johnson died when a car struck him as he crossed a street near his home.

While most of the state experienced rain Friday, snow fell in the northern section. Plattsburgh received more than six inches and Massena more than three.

The Weather Bureau said temperatures ranging from the mid 20s to the mid 30s would accompany today's snow flurries.

2 Burglars Fail At Bank Robbery In Wallkill Area

An attempted burglary at the Valley National Bank, Wallkill, apparently misfired early this morning, according to state troopers from Highland barracks, who were still investigating the reported incident at press time today. Authorities received a report that two witnesses had seen two men, described only as white males, leaving the rear of the bank at 6 o'clock this morning. Investigation showed that the unsuccessful burglars had attempted to open the big safe in the bank, but their efforts had proved fruitless since nothing was reported missing or taken. Although troopers said there was no evidence that an automobile had been used by the men when they left the scene, an authoritative source reported to The Freeman this morning that two Kingston policemen had found an abandoned car at 7:30 a. m. on Sterling Street, just off Greenkill Avenue. The engine, hood and tires were evidently "cold"—signifying the car had been there long enough for any heat generated by its recent use to wear off. Nevertheless, police were reportedly investigating the possibility that the vehicle might have been used in connection with the burglary attempt at the bank.

Port Ewen Is Scene Of School Bus Mishap

Highland state police investigated a school bus accident Friday afternoon at the intersection of New Salem and Bowen Streets, Village of Port Ewen, about one-fourth mile West of Route 9W. No one was injured in the mishap, no arrests were made and the bus was empty of passengers at the time. Troopers said the 1957 bus, owned by Lucy Perry, of Port Ewen, was being operated by Paul R. Schwark, 69, of New Salem Street, same village, when it was in collison with a 1965 sedan driven by Lorraine C. Linn, 20, 199 Minturn Street, Port Ewen. The bus was going on New Salem Street and making a right turn onto Bowen Street when Schwark, unable to complete the turn, backed up and struck the front of the Linn car, which he was unable to see and which had stopped behind the bus.

Killed in Crash

STAMFORD, N.Y. (AP) — Mrs. Florence Martin, 27, of Bloomville, was killed Friday when the automobile in which she was a passenger and a truck collided on a rural road near this village east of Oneonta.

Modern Cape Dwelling Contains 4 Big Bedrooms

By JACK McELENEY

How would you like to be the owner of a modern home design large enough to contain four big bedrooms?

Associated Architects have such a plan today—"The Ingerson"—for which plans are available at very moderate cost. You can afford to own these plans and with them obtain firm and accurate estimates from your builder on complete construction costs, and use them for the actual construction. The blueprints are drawn to meet construction and property requirements of FHA and VA building codes.

There are 960 square feet on the first floor and 440 square feet in the upstairs bedroom area. The garage is 12 by 20 feet, and has 250 square feet of space.

As we walk through the front door we stand in a vestibule that has its own guest closet and looks directly into the living room, which is 14 by 18-6 feet big, featuring a beautiful three-cornered fireplace. A staircase with open rail in the hall leads to the second floor.

I think you will be delighted by the modern open planning of living and dining areas. The kitchen, of course, opens to the dining room. The work space is for maximum efficiency; in terms of interest to a housewife, which means step-saving over unplanned kitchens.

The four bedrooms have just what you have a right to expect in size, fenestration, and closet space.

Upstairs there is another full bath that features a shower instead of the tub, convenient to both bedrooms. There is a linen closet in the hall and a towel closet in the bathroom. The bedrooms, as rooms of this type go, are very large. One is 11 by 14 feet and the other is 11 by 16 feet, each with a large closet.

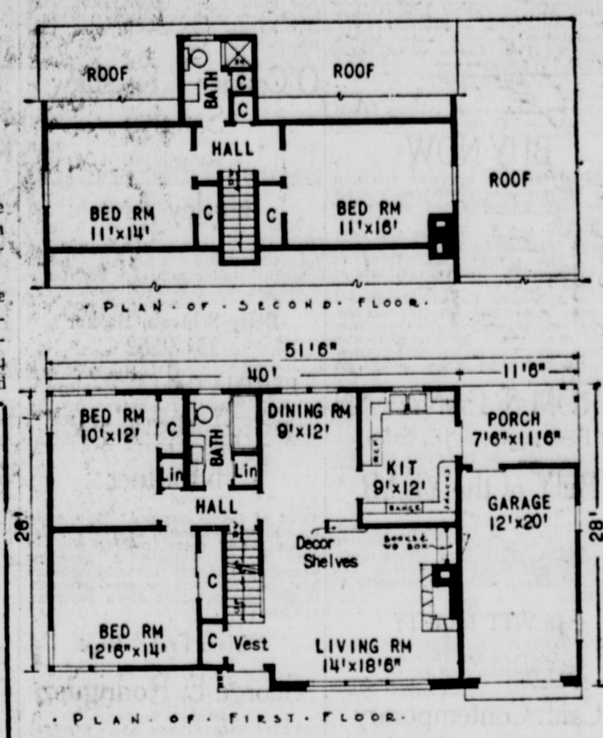

Now there's built-in economy in the plan of "The Ingerson." Want to save in the original construction costs? Omit the garage this year and add it later at your leisure.

If local conditions make brick or concrete block less expensive than wood siding, you can take advantage of the condition because the plans tell you how to build with any one of these materials.

Now, to order plans use the accompanying coupon. Note that the "Ingerson," being a two story structure, comes with basement only. However, this design can be built also without a full basement should you so desire, or conditions dictate.

Your order for the plans will also bring at no extra cost a set of specifcations to help protect your investment.

Woman Injured After Car-Milk Truck Mishap

A young Rockland County woman was seriously injured when her 1963 sedan was in collision with a milk tank truck at 3:45 p. m. Friday on Route 32 just north of the Saxton flats. State police identified the driver as Patricia Boyd, 25, of Lake Road, Valley Cottage; said she was taken to Kingston Hospital suffering from lacerations of the head, fracture of the left collarbone and other injuries. Driver of the tank truck, Robert K. Ackerman, 27, of Allamuchy, N. J., was not injured. Trooper James Kelly, of Lake Katrine barracks, who investigated, said the truck was going south on the highway and the Boyd car was proceeding north when the driver of the sedan lost control of her vehicle, spun around several times and flipped into the front of the truck with the rear of her car. No arrests were made following the mishap and hospital records indicated the woman was "doing well" today.

FULL WEEK'S TV LISTINGS FOR WEEK OF JAN. 29th THRU FEB. 4th

"Abe Lincoln in Illinois" returns to home screens Thursday, Feb. 2, over NBC. The hour-and-a-half telecast features memorable performances by Jason Robard as Lincoln, and Kate Reid as Mary Todd Lincoln, in a prestigious Hallmark production.

Robert Sherwood's Renowned 'Lincoln' Returns to the Home Screen

NEW YORK
By DON ROYAL

"The Making of a President 1860," would be an appropriate subtitle for "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," Robert Sherwood's Pulitzer Prize drama, whose television adaptation by the Hallmark Hall of Fame will be seen for the second time on NBC on Thursday, Feb. 2, 9:30-11 p. m., Eastern time.

The 90-minute color special, first presented three years ago, stars Jason Robards in the title role, and the talented English-born Canadian actress, Kate Reid, as Mary Todd Lincoln, Lincoln's neurotic, quuarrelsome ambitious wife.

Both performers won Emmy nominations for their roles and the volume of mail from viewers set an all-time record for Hallmark shows. Continuous requests that the play be repeated prompted the decision to present it in this pre-Lincoln's Birthday time for 1967.

When "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" opened on Broadway in 1938, drama critic Brooks Atkinson termed it the playwright's "finest." He said Sherwood moved his audience through the period from 1830 to the election of 1860 in such a fashion that the "careless, good-natured boy grew before your eyes into a towering man of melancholy . . . the play is inspired by the sorrowful grandeur of the man it portrays."

The television adaptation was produced and directed by George Schaefer, who has had a directoral hand in more than 50 Hall of Fame productions, most of which have been award-winning presentations.

Schaefer's actress-wife, Mildred Trares, plays the role of Ann Rutledge, Lincoln's first love and the girl whose early death of "swamp fever" in New Salem nearly drives Abe to the brink of insanity.

Other veteran performers include James Broderick as Josh Speed, Hiram Sherman as Judge Bowling Green, Douglas Watson as Ninian Edwards and Roy Poole as Seth Gale—all close and long-time friends of Lincoln — and Burt Brinkerhoff as Billy Herndon, Lincoln's young law partner and a fiery abolitionist.

MILDRED TRARES, as Ann Rutledge; Lincoln's first love—(woman on the left in photo) and JASON ROBARDS as Abraham Lincoln, in a tender moment from "ABE LINCOLN IN ILLINOIS", The Hallmark Hour & a Half Special * returning to television Thursday, February 2,—9:30 to 11 p. m. Eastern Time, NBC.

The "Argument Scene" on election night from Hallmarks "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" is portrayed by Kate Reid, as Mary Todd Lincoln, and Jason Robards as Abe Lincoln. It captures but a moment of the moving drama. The Hour & a Half production returns to Television Thursday evening February 2, 9:30 to 11 p. m. in a Special telecast after a three year absence.

Robert Hartung, an associate of Schaefer's and a Writers Guild award winner, adapted the Sherwood drama for television.

"Adapting this poignant script was indeed a challenge," he commented. "The original playing time is well over three hours. The problem was to preserve as much of this extremely effective character study as possible in the limited time of 76 minutes.

"The character of Lincoln is of prime importance and nothing could be cut that would harm the playwright's penetrating insight that shows how Lincoln had been influenced as a young man by his many friends and had been goaded into accepting the responsibility of public life that would lead him to the White House," Hartung said.

The drama depends upon 12 artfully constructed episodes to give the effect of continuous growth. Each scene is a vignette, a one-act play in itself.

Perhaps the most dramatic example of editing is to be found in presentation of the Lincoln-Douglas debate — a fast-moving montage of excerpts from the famous speeches. Whereas this scene took almost 30 minutes on stage, the television montage accomplished the same impact in relatively few minutes.

Producer-director Schaefer described the play as "a brilliantly organized, carefully observed and deeply felt study of Lincoln as a human being and not a historical figure." His summation:

"Here is a young man, shy, eager to learn, obsessed with death, and quite unwilling to accept the high opinion that his friends and associates hold of him. It is a truly magnificent, tragic character and one ideally suited to Jason Robards' great talent. It is always difficult to play a role which has been created earlier by a famous star, and we all remember how much Raymond Massey brought to Mr. Sherwood's play which, incidentally, had been written for him.

"It is to Jason's credit that he approached the role completely from his own viewpoint and made his interpretation a vivid and subtle portrayal."

Schaefer said his job as director was to help Robards walk a difficult tightrope.

"Lincoln was an important and wise man and his friends knew this. But he thought himself unimportant and made inappropriate jokes to cover up his real feelings. He had a devastating native wit and often played the clown. Sherwood was not afraid of this part of Lincoln's character, and yet if the actor playing this role does not show the profound statesman underneath the surface, he can leave an audience doubting the validity of Sherwood's approach," Schaefer said.

(Here, mention should be made of the portrayal of Mary Todd Lincoln, as played by Kate Reid. Though the well-nigh incredible character appears in but four brief scenes, Miss Reid manages to show the full story of a giddy young belle who turns into a bitter, perhaps actually insane, older woman.)

In conclusion, Schaefer says of "Abe Lincoln in Illinois": "The portrait of Lincoln that we have in Sherwood's play shows him not in an official capacity but as a real person, growing and groping his way to greatness.

"To direct this work with this cast was a rare privilege."

And, it may be well to add, the television presentation is a rare and moving experience for the home audience.

Fast Kiss

Lee Remick represented the theater at a press conference to announce the fact that ABC-TV would be telecasting the Tony Awards this season. (In the past, the Broadway equivalent of the Oscar has been only a local program). New York's Mayor John Lindsay was also present and when he arrived he leaned over and kissed Lee on the cheek. Some photographers who were sitting there called out that they didn't get the pictures. "I knew you wouldn't be fast enough for that," the mayor quipped back.

What a Title

A recent Rango episode was titled, in case you missed it, "What's a Nice Girl Like You Doing Holding Up a Town Like This?"

Glenn Corbett On Road Again

BY ERSKINE JOHNSON

HOLLYWOOD — "It's nice to be going somewhere with the promise of something happening. I was pretty unhappy about just standing around holding the reins of those farm horses."

This is Glenn Corbett — The Chance Reynolds of NBC-TV's The Road West—talking about the show's mid-season change of format from down-on-the-farm in Kansas to high adventure traveling westward.

"I know," Glenn grinned, "now they will be saying that the show is Wagon Train, 1967. But at least we'll be different. We have only ONE wagon."

Barry Sullivan, Glen Corbett & Co. will start treaveling west on the show of Feb 6 (minus cast members Kathryn Hays and Charles Seel) and Glenn reports he's not the only one enthused about leaving that bleak Kansas farm. It is unanimous cast happiness.

"It's funny," he said, "that farm was getting all of us down. Once we started moving everyone settled down."

Glenn was on the road once before, in 31 episodes of Route 66 after he replaced George Maharis and now that he's traveling again he tells a funny story about TV repeating itself.

"We just finished a show about fining two fellows in trouble and solving their problems for them. While we were shooting I said to Andy (cast member Andy Prine), 'You know, Andy this is just like a story we did on Route 66.' "

"Andy's answer cracked me up. He said:

" 'Are you kidding. THIS is just like a story WE did on Wide Country.' "

Glenn cut the steak he ordered for lunch and smiled.

"I guess there are no new plots in television."

Well, at least Glenn gave TV something new when he offered to do a difficult stunt—falling through a building skylight—when he was a guest on The Man From U.N.C.L.E. just after leaving Route 66.

GLENN CORBETT

"The glass skylight was made of candy and it looked easy. Well, I not only broke the glass but also broke my back. I was in a hospital for two and a half weeks and three months in a brace.

"When I saw the scene—which they used in the film—it hurt me even more. After all that trouble I looked like a falling bag of sand. For Route 66 I piloted a hydroplane at 95 miles an hour and one day, just for kicks, Marty Milner and I raced stock cars at 120 miles an hour. Falling through that skylight taught me a lesson.

"Today when a director tells me, 'Now in this scene you look out the window' my answer is 'Where's my stunt man?' "

Is Leon Askin Really Bad Guy?

LEON ASKIN

HOLLYWOOD—After 10 years as a merchant of menace in movies and on television, oval-faced, multiple-chinned Leon Askin delights in telling about his "parole" as a bad guy.

It happened recently when his name was mentioned to TV producer Roy Huggins for the role of a heavy in a new Huggins project.

"Don't be ridiculous," said Huggins. "Leon Askin is a comedian."

If the producer had ever seen Leon's skullduggery in a hundred different roles, Huggins didn't say. But what he had seen was Askin in the recurring role of Gen. Burkhalter, the pudgy, scowling boss of quaking Col. Klink and fumbling Sgt. Schultz in CBS-TV's Hogan's Heroes series.

What Askin thinks is even more paradoxical is the fact that he's an Austrian who speaks fluent German but until Hogan's Heroes he had never portrayed anything resembling a teutonic type.

"Two and a half years ago I pointed out to my agent that Hollywood was making a lot of movies about World War II and asked him why I wasn't getting roles in any of them. His answer to me was, 'Leon, you're just not a Nazi officer type.'"

As the pre-Hogan's Heroes merchant of menace, Leon was typed as a Russian or a Turkish pasha. "I've died a hundred violent deaths," he says. "Whenever someone tells me he saw me in an old movie on television but he can't remember the title, I just ask, 'How did I die?' and then I can tell him which picture it was."

Joining the cast of Hogan's Heroes was like old home week for Askin. He and John Banner, who plays Sgt. Schultz, were fellow actors on the Vienna stage in pre-Hitler days. In 1947, Askin directed Werner Klemperer, who plays Col. Klink, in a German-language stage production of "Abie's Irish Rose" in New York.

And just before World War II, Askin, then a film writer, was interned in a detention camp just outside of Paris by the French government, which considered him an enemy alien because of his Austrian citizenship.

The French camp, he reports, provided as much comedy as the POW camp in Hogan's Heroes. "One day," he recalls, "another prisioner and I and an armed guard were sent on an errand to a nearby village. The guard deserted us, got drunk in a saloon, passed out and we brought him back to camp in a wheel barrow."

A U. S. visa, for which he had previously applied, won Askin his release from the camp after six months and he reached New York just before the German invasion of France. Later, he served in the U. S. Army.

Tea Reader

When Arlene Dahl appeared on Bob Hope Presents the Chrysler Theater, she entertained the cast and crew between scenes by reading tea leaves. When she took a long time with one cup, Hope peeked in and said, "There must be lots more. It says 'Continued in Next Cup.'"

CBS Attempts Drama Return

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Most critics and many viewers consider the 1950s to have been television's Elizabethan era, when live television produced vital drama that hasn't been matched since.

CBS is making what appears to be a brave attempt to bring back at least a semblance of that era. The network has contracted for a series of special dramas for "CBS Playhouse." The first is a story of the Vietnam war, "The Final War of Olly Winter," which will appear Sunday.

Significantly, the producer is Fred Coe, a name revered for his association with such early series as Television Playhouse, Philco-Goodyear Playhouse, Playwrights 56 and Playhouse 90.

Coe, who turned in recent years to producing plays — "The Miracle Worker" — and films — "A Thousand Clowns" — seemed delighted to be back in the medium in which he began 20 years ago.

Coe's drama will be opposite NBC's top-ranked "Bonanza." He was asked if CBS wouldn't be accused of cowardice in not scheduling "Playhouse" where it had a better chance to gain a rating.

Hope for Best

"I don't think CBS is presenting this series as a popularity contest," the producer replied. "I'm sure everyone would be very happy if our show does as well as 'Death of a Salesman,' which made a very good rating although it didn't beat 'Bonanza.'

"The aim seems to be not to win viewers away from 'Bonanza,' but to attract new viewers who seldom watch television. There is an enormous minority of nonviewers who don't want arty shows or ballets, but are only seeking some originality in television. Since they seldom find it, they don't watch 'tv.'"

'Every Litter Bit'

Lassie is the latest TV star to join the "Every Litter Bit" hurts drive. In a show set for CBS-TV on Jan. 22, Lassie wanders through the forest and finds her animal friends are fastidious housekeepers. But then she comes on a ravine filled with litter that makes it evident that human visitors have been careless in disposing of refuse. Lassie tracks down one of the litterbugs, convinces him of the error of his ways, and even succeeds in getting him to clean out the ravine. Really she does.

Today's Picks

9-9:30 (ABC) — Rango disguises himself as an outlaw to help the Rangers recover $100,000 robbery money.

9-11 (CBS) — The Friday Night Movies presents "Island of Love," with Robert Preston as a romantic con man who wants to make a film about Adam and Eve. Tony Randall and Walter Matthau are also featured.

10-11 (NBC) — Laredo's Chad and Erik pose as criminals to get the goods on a Mexico-based Chinese opium dealer. Henry Silva guest-stars.

THEY HARDLY look like a couple about to break up, but that's the way it is with actor Mickey Rooney, 46, and wife No. 6, Margaret, in Los Angeles. Mrs. Rooney wants a divorce, asking $845 a month in alimony payments because she is too nervous to work. The actor wants an annulment, contending he can't afford his wife's demands because of heavy debts. (NEA Telephoto)

Hot Meals for the Troops

American troops have long had the reputation of being one of the best-fed armies in history, but a new development is adding one more touch of home to the field menu—hot rolls. A new portable bun-making machine kneads the dough and shapes and cooks the buns all in one operation.

In the top picture, Herbert Malmstrom, an American Air Filter Equipment engineer in St. Louis dumps a sack of flour in the machine while Clarence W. Lynn, Army equipment specialist, checks the finished product. Picture at left shows the machine with the oven section open, and Lynn checking the buns as they travel on a chain-driven tray. The buns travel four times through the length of the oven for baking before popping out browned and warm, as shown above. Made from a specially mixed, high nutrient flour, they can furnish the full daily nourishment needed by a soldier in the field.

Drury Goes To Vietnam

HOLLYWOOD—If you're confused about the war in Vietnam, now hear this.

The speaker is James Drury, TV's The Virginian who spent a month in Vietnam as the star of a USO entertainment unit which gave 52 shows in 35 days to American troops.

For Drury the trip was more than just a chance to entertain young Americans on foreign soil. "I figured," he says, "it was an opportunity for me to research history in the making. For two weeks before leaving I did my homework—I read everything I could about both North and South Vietnam, everything about the war.

"After the two weeks I said to myself, 'Yes, now I know what this war is all about. Then I went to Vietnam and after 35 days there I came home realizing that now I don't know what this war is all about—and I suspect I never will know.

"All I know now is that it's hideously fascinating and that we've got to be there. I also know that I've got to go back again. It's a personal obligation I have to myself, not to just tell a few jokes from a stage but to sit down and talk with those fellows in uniform.

"I keep thinking of just one incident I heard about over there. I was told that one day a little girl of about five or six sat down on the edge of an airstrip being guarded by U. S. Army men. She was crying and a group of soldiers gathered around her. Suddenly, from beneath her dress, she pulled out a hand grenade and blew herself and the soldiers to kingdom come. I was told that this is the way the Viet Cong are fighting this war."

Now in his fifth season as The Virginian, Drury is happy to say that he thinks the series is "twice the show it's ever been before. The shows are better because all of us realized we were in a crucial year, that we had to improve the quality of the shows or get out of the business.

"The addition of Charles Bickford to the cast has been a big plus along with the return of Frank Price, the show's original producer. Personally I'm avoiding depression over doing the same role for so long by not doing the same things. I've tried to introduce new facets to the character, letting him be the same man but with different points of view

"I feel a big responsibility to the show. If the character becomes dull I know I'll become depressed and the show will suffer."

For the first time recently the show had a woman director, Ida Lupino, and Drury is still raving about her. "She has brains she hasn't even used yet. She gives a man an insight into things another man can't understand. It's the intuition all women have."

ON THE WAY UP is John Van Dreelen, a Holland native who has been acting all over the world for the last two decades. Adding to his stature as an actor was a major role in "Madame X." He now is the star of his own series on German television.

Weak Stomach

Bob Denver, of Gilligan's Island, says he bought a "stomach TV set" but had trouble watching because all the programs turned his stomach.

The osprey, after eating its chief diet of fish, flies low and drags its feet, in the water, apparently to wash them, according to the Encyclopaedia Brittannica.

Living with People

Fellows who tolerate girls who pout and baby-talk ask for future trouble.

Promotions Listed by WNEW-TV

WNEW-TV (Channel 5), New York, is dividing its sales staff into two units, each of which will be led by a newly appointed Sales Supervisor.

Those promoted to the new supervisory positions were Sherwood O. (Sherry) Heath and Irving A. Gross. Each will direct a unit of four salesmen and will report to WNEW-TV's General Sales Manager Martin F. Connelly.

Mr. Heath has been with the WNEW-TV sales staff for over seven years, and earlier was an agency account executive. Mr. Gross joined WNEW-TV sales six years ago from a sales post in the station representative business.

WNEW-TV also said that an additional salesman will be hired, bringing the total sales staff to 10 men.

In announcing the changes in his department, Mr. Connelly noted that he has increased the depth of service to each agency and advertiser "in response to the complexity of today's marketing problems, as well as a growing station sales volume."

Under the new setup, New York's agencies will be divided equally between the sales units. Similar arrangements are common in the representative field, where salesmen must handle a long list of stations, but this is the first time that any U.S. TV station has instituted a "double team" system to sell a single outlet.

The Final War, Original Drama

NEW YORK — The unveiling is Sunday.

On that day, "meaningful, original drama" begins again on CBS-TV, which has grown fat over the years mothering such profitable trivia as The Beverly Hillbillies, Hogan's Heroes and Petticoat Junction.

In on the auspicious occasion is producer-director Fred Coe, the Peabody Award winner, the champion of the old Playhouse 90 days and veteran of the so-called "Golden Years" of television.

Back in the saddle again and only a few pounds heavier, Coe is producing CBS Playhouse's first original play, "The Final War of Olly Winter," starring Ivan Dixon (the unpredictable Negro sergeant on Hogan's Heroes) as a war-weary Vietnam adviser.

The play was written by Ronald Ribman, an off-Broadway dramatist, in 1963. But until now, there was no place for it on television.

"I think it was a good choice to start off the series. It's modern. It's unusual and it has a very simple storyline — all things which television can do well," said Coe, in between editing the 90-minute drama which was taped in Hollywood.

"We only hope that viewers and critics are't expecting us to break the sound barrier. We hope they are just interested in solid drama, a well-written play, done well," said Coe.

The producer calls the lean years after the Playhouse 90s and Studio Ones went off the air as "civilized insanity."

"It wasn't just the fault of the networks that we didn't have more original dramas. Everybody — writers, directors, producers, actors and the advertisers — got rich off the situation comedies. It was the trend, a dangerous one, and everybody sold out," he said.

The CBS Playhouse project won't be on the air every week. But Mike Dann, the network's programming chief, promises the plays will all be presented in prime time. Besides Coe, Herbert Brodkin formerly of The Defenders, George Schaefer of Hallmark Hall of Fame and Martin Manulis, also a Playhouse 90 veteran, are producing plays for the series.

Coe insists CBS has given him remarkable freedom in the new project. "Show business by committee is dangerous. If they wanted me, I was to do it my own way," said the producer, who has been busy in recent years with Broadway ("Wait Until Dark") and Hollywood features.

Besides Ribman, Coe has also lined up Roger Hirshon and J. J. Miller to write scripts for the CBS Playhouse. All the writers, regardless of reputation, earn the same amount, $25,000 per work.

"We want to capture what they used to do in the old days with original dramas," said Coe. "But with a little bit more time and a whole lot more money to spend on production, we think we can do a much better job."

TV Questions & Answers

NOSEY GIRL — We think Marlo Thomas is cute on That Girl but wonder if she had a nose job? — K. C., Miami, Fla.

If you're referring to whether Miss Thomas has had an operation to make her nose smaller, you won't find the answer here. We've talked to the actress, the daughter of Danny Thomas, and found everything about her quite natural.

THIS AND THAD — Tell us about Roger Ewing of Gunsmoke. — G. G., Mereta, Tex.

The 25-year-old actor who plays Clayton Thaddeus (Thad) Greenwood on the CBS-TV western is from Los Angeles, the son of Thomas Ewing, an attorney. After attending he State University of Iowa, he hitchhiked around the country and worked as a lifeguard, a construction laborer, a short-order cook and in a variety of odd jobs. Roger's first break in show business was playing a defendant in A Day in Court. Since then he has had small parts in films ("Ensign Pulver" and "None But the Brave") and in various series, including the old Bing Crosby Show in which he played the beau of Bing's TV daughter. Single, the actor has blond hair, blue eyes, weighs 205 pounds and is 6-feet-4. He lives in Hollywood.

EARLY-BOPPERS — Are you dumb? Why put Where the Action Is on at 8 o'clock in the morning? All of us big kids are at school!—J. Johnson, Stillwater, Minn.

Don't blame us. The rock 'n' roll show is syndicated. Complain to your local station, which obviously likes to swing early.

EMPTY CHAIR—Will Martin Gabel ever return to What's My Line? Or has he retired from television. — G.S., Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.

Gabel will be on the quiz show again. He is an infrequent guest. Only regulars are his wife Arlene Francis, Bennett Cerf and host John Daly.

Steals Her Act

Joan Rivers says she went to a psychiatrist who told her to tell him everything. "I did," she adds, "and now he's doing my act."

The Alliance for Progress—struggle for Latin American self-improvement—entered its seventh year in 1967, with proof of accomplishments, but much unfinished business. Officials of the Bureau of Inter-American Affairs in Washington, D.C., admit that progress in the nations to the south is slow, despite aid from the United States. Minimum target levels for economic growth may not be reached for the past year's efforts, but officials blame part of this on bad weather which reduced agricultural output. Yet the program forges on, leaving its imprint with accomplishments such as providing materials for the building of a school, as shown above, the training of unskilled workers, at lower right, or medical treatment for those previously deprived of it, at lower left.

Mobile Health units supported by Alliance funds give treatment at places where it was not previously available. Here Dr. Ramon Meza, with a unit based in El Salvador, examines a small boy who suffered from laryngitis for a year. He was subsequently sent to a large hospital for curative treatment.

One aspect of the community development plans being carried out in Latin America is the training of people of all ages in special abilities. Equipment such as the sewing machine for training this man in making clothing is provided by the U.S. Agency for International Development.

Ida Lupino Is Back to Her Past

IDA LUPINO

HOLLYWOOD—Ida Lupino is shifting gears again.

After deserting an acting career for 15 years of directing movies and television dramas, she just turned actress again for the role of a mad scientist in a forthcoming TV movie based on the "I Love A Mystery" radio series for NBC-TV's World Premiere series.

But there's no eyebrow lifting from Ida about the role.

"If you dig into my movie past, darling, you'll discover that I was always playing a mad something or other."

Her violent movies roles and the violent TV drama with which she has been associated (blood and guts detective stories and westerns is a wonder because Ida is the epitome of faminity and a self-confessed "very nonviolent person."

But she still prefers violence to tender love scenes "because, darling, that's where the drama is."

One acting performance now doesn't mean she's giving up directing but as a former actress a good role intrigues her. "But," she's quick to say, "I will only play women my own age. No one will ever catch me having my face lifted to play younger women."

As the boss on a TV set with its all-male crew, Ida has never been labeled a bossy woman and there's a good reason. She explains:

"I don't believe in a woman ordering men around. When I ask for something it's on a pretty please basis. When I suggest something to an actor or a cameraman, I first preface my words with, "Let's see if you will be comfortable doing this." On the set I wear slacks and funny hats and the fellows refer to me as 'Mother' and we get along just fine.

After 15 years of directing Ida is appalled these days by a new breed of young male directors who are going in for what she calls "outlandish camera angles."

She complains:

"Some of them are putting the camera on the ground and shooting up into peoples' nostrils. They are putting the camera under arm pits, under lamp shades and even hanging the camera from the ceiling. I don't understand it. The audience is still out in front and that's the only point of view.

"I'm happy to say these crazy camera angles do not make me feel inadequate as a director. The only director who does make me feel inadequate is David Lean. He's never done anything with a camera without good reason. I study his movies reel by reel."

Kopell Kept Busy

Bernie Kopell, who is so funny playing Siegfried, the German Kaos agent on Get Smart, is beginning to appear more and more in the NBC-TV series. Kopell was in the pilot of Run, Buddy, Run as Buddy's brother. But it was decided the character wasn't necessary to the series (and as it turned out, none of them was), and he was written out. But executive producer Leonard Stern was so impressed with Kopell's work that he is keeping him fairly steadily employed on Stern's other show—the hit.

The word chapel is derived from a Latin word meaning clock.

Coliseum Gets Off to Auspicious Start Thursday

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "Coliseum," the direct descendant of last summer's "Hippodrome" on CBS, started off auspiciously Thursday night.

The series, replacing "Jericho," will be taped performances of assorted spectacles and circuses mostly foreign, and the opening program was sure-fire: an ice show.

Has Perenial Appeal

Actually, when you have seen one ice show you have really seen them all, but skating seems to hold a perennial appeal with its graceful movements, flashing blades, and now that color has come to so many homes, the glitter and beauty of the costumes.

Stars of the show were the professionals of "The New Vienna Extravaganza on Ice," performing before an audience in Brussels, Belgium.

An elaborate ice show, as usual, was not quite enough for television's needs, so the show was fortified by Herman's Hermits, a long-haired British singing quartet in a couple of songs. Hugh O'Brian, in white tie, introduced the acts, but not before he had made the inevitable wobbly entrance on skates.

The series undoubtedly will attract audiences of decent size — this type of program is rarely a big hit but it also is infrequently a real disaster. And it will certainly be palatable as a nice clean family show.

Now is the time when the three networks are busily pulling together their schedules for next season's shows.

Easy to Pick Losers

Because television lives and dies by the Nielsen ratings, it is pretty easy to pick the losers — right off the bottom of the list.

Thus, it would be logical to assume that the days are numbered for such shows as ABC's "Green Hornet," "The Monroes," "Love on a Rooftop." Even "Batman" doesn't look too healthy.

On CBS's dubious list are "It's About Time" and all their prime-time game shows, but the latter are inexpensive to produce so they might survive. NBC has trouble spots in "The Road West," "T.H.E. Cat," "Laredo" and "The Girl from U.N.C.L.E."

The jury, of course, is still out on the 10 new shows that were midseason replacements for the drop-outs of this season, but historically few other than "Batman" and "Branded" have survived for more than short runs.

Borge Learns

Victor Borge, who recently hosted Hollywood Palace and made his dramatic debut on The Man From U.N.C.L.E., spoke no English when he came to America from Denmark in 1940. He learned the language by spending hours in movies houses watching B westerns. "I became the only Dane in the world," he said, "who sounded like Gabby Hayes."

SHOW BIZ by FLASH

"It's a union grievance, sir! The workers claim you have 'bad breath'!"

TV Questions & Answers

LATE SHOW ANNIE — Who played the Negro maid in the film, "Imitation of Life?" Where may I write her? — J. A., Wichita, Kans.

There were two versions of the Fannie Hurst tear-jerker, and both have been released to TV. In the first, starring Claudette Colbert, the maid was played by the late Louise Beaver. In the 1959 remake, starring Lana Turner, Juanita Moore played Annie. You can write the actress at the Screen Actor's Guild, Hollywood, Calif.

LATE SHOW LILY — Was the film, "I'll Cry Tomorrow" actually based on Lillian Roth's life? — Sylvia Rothstein, St. Paul, Minn.

Yes. The 1956 release, featuring Susan Hayworth, was based on Miss Roth's book about her bouts with alcohol. In recent years she has been busy as an actress on Broadway and summer stock.

LATE SHOW TROUPER — Did Joan Crawford ever dance in any of her films? — Mrs. C. D., Jackson, Mich.

Yes. She began her career as a hoofer. In the 1930s until 1953 when she again danced in "Torch Song" she confined her activities to melodramas. Miss Crawford has since hung up her dancing shoes.

MONKEES' EXIT—Is it true The Monkees are going off the air because of low ratings?—L. G., Niagara Falls, N. Y.

Sounds like an ugly rumor. So far, NBC-TV and Screen Gems, producers of the rock 'n' roll comedy series, appear pleased with its ratings. It is doing better than most of the series which which premiered this season.

CAGED FUGITIVE — Why doesn't David Janssen make guest appearances? Is it true he is younger than 30?—Nancy J. A. C., St. Paul, Minn.

Janssen does make guest appearances. We spotted him on The Hollywood Palace last season where he danced and sang. His busy Fugitive schedule doesn't permit too much outside activity but he has a film, "Warning Shot," about to be released. The actor is closer to 40 than he is to 30.

OUTSIDE WORK—Is it true Andy Williams' wife was recently on The Rat Patrol?—Jacques E. Dicker, Miami Beach, Fla.

Yes. Claudine Longet, the French actress and Andy's wife, was featured in a three-partner, "The Last Harbor Raid," on The Rat Patrol.

The polka is a dance of Czech origin, not Polish.
